

1. Academic, Arts and Culture Clubs

- i As the name suggests, this club is about all things musical and is behind every musical scheme and music-related competition at VGU. This is where all music heads come to relax and showcase their talents or tune to others'.

Debate Club

i Negotiate, argue and convince - such vital skills for anyone in Life and such hard abilities to acquire through a textbook - come with time as we communicate and practice it with each other.

Come join VGU Debate club for your own skills and bring us your fresh and genuine ideas - whether it be how the world should be or what is wrong with your lesson that morning - ideas do count.

n In November 2013, Young Debate Championship was successfully hosted by VGU Debate Club with the theme "What kind of world do you want?" attracting paramount interest and participation from students and high-schoolers in Ho Chi Minh City and Binh Duong alike.

i Reading is generally considered a solitary leisure activity but when a book has moved or inspired you, you impulsively and instantaneously want to discuss it with someone else. A book club gives you that opportunity.

In collaboration with VGU Library, the club organizes seminars to introduce spectacular, peculiar and most often, bestselling books. There are also, though not regular, group discussions to enhance one's reading pleasure and the desire to share it.

Fun fact: SaHa is the syllabic abbreviation for "sach hay", literally translating to 'good books' - truth, they almost went with 'GoBo club'.

- i The name literally translates to recycling club. This is exactly what the club does: recycle. Not having stirring or rousing events like other clubs, VeChai club unobtrusively and modestly runs as its silent army fights in the battle against global warming and pollution (and perhaps also ignorance) with the motto: “Make dormitory a greener place”.

Baskets are strategically positioned in every block at dorm so that students can leave used paper, plastic bottles, plastic bags, aluminum cans and other reusable and recyclable stuff, to name a few. Those baskets are later collected and classified every fortnight (every two weeks).

Want to be a green warrior? Just join the team on any basket collecting session, all of which are announced on VGU Home.

2. Sports Clubs

- i Aikido is a form of martial arts originated from Japan and bears in itself the spirit of samurais and their chivalry. 'Aikido' means 'the way of harmonious spirit' or 'Hiệp Khí Đạo' and its idea is more about defense than offense. Active since 10/2013, VGU Aikido Club has been taught by Aikido Binh Duong's masters through means of analogies, historical anecdotes, repeated demonstrations and careful explanation on each technique.

VGU Aikido Dojo welcomes all, at any level, at any time.

-  The mission of VGU Swimming Club is to promote the love of swimming and the discipline and hard work that comes with it. Athletes who truly love what they are doing can achieve beyond expectations by joining our Shark Team. We also offer swimming classes of different levels taught by professional athletes. Our success is defined the moment all members think and act side by side for the common good of the club and out of mutual love for the sport of swimming.

i SYNNET – after three long years, the VGU Tennis Club has been reborn. VGU Tennis Club was founded by a student of VGU in 2011 with a vision of gathering people interested in tennis together – well of course. Moreover, the club’s general idea revolves around solidarity and finding goodness in people.

SYNNET is simply ‘tennis’ reading backwards, but what they’ve got to offer is guaranteed to be more interesting than that. Members are offered free-of-charge playtime for three days per week, high quality sports equipment and best of all, instructors who will be watching their every step into the tennis realm.

With its recent launch, SYNNET is raising the bar for the entire VGU student body.
