“Jake is a troubled young man. Hiding in shadows, surrounded by an addiction he doesn't fully understand. Walking through the pain of a broken childhood, choosing to listen to the screaming little boy living in his soul rather than the level headed man he should have grown to be.”

'Kill for Her' focuses on choices made, and not made, when they can impact your life the most. What life lessons must one learn to be able to paint right from wrong clearly? What you see isn't always what you get. Or is it?"

Background:

Kyle was a great person.

A kind, intelligent, and creative person. Kyle loved watching the stars. Kyle loved the colors Black and Red. Kyle loved the television show 'Lost'. Kyle loved cooking. Kyle loved discussing films, scripts, and everything cinema.

He attended film school to follow his forever dream of becoming a director. Kyle would spend countless hours writing amazing scripts, and making wonderful shorts. He always dreamt of working with his filmmaking idols.

Kyle had also battled depression. He spent his life seeing therapists, taking medication, and trying to control the demon inside him that screamed 'your not good enough'. He attempted to take his life once - recovered - and we all thought he was on the right track to happiness.

We were fooled.

On April 6th, 2011 Kyle Linford committed suicide.

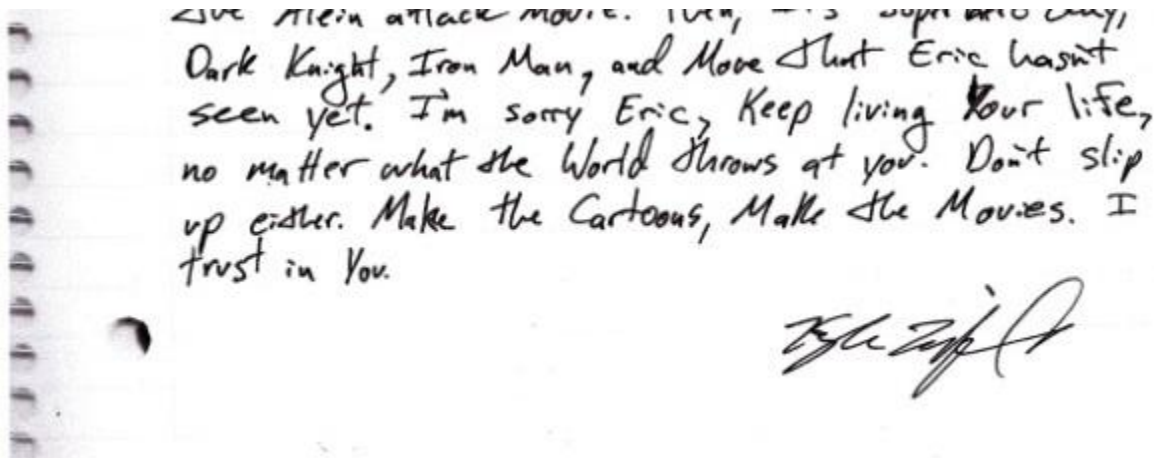

He left behind a mother, father, sister, dog - friends, extended family and co-workers. Also, many scripts. Many amazing scripts.

One of which, was 'Kill for Her'.

In Kyle's suicide note to his best friend and director Eric Protiva, he gave Eric his blessing to go ahead with the films. Kyle trusted Eric. Eric put the right cast and crew together, and got this ball rolling!

If we can make a good film #InKylesMemory and save some lives by sharing Kyle's story - and some of ours - we have done our part.

Rest in Peace, Kyle. #STOPSUICIDE.
