

how are aesthetic hair implants

As we are aware of the fact that surgical option is the only way of getting back hair on the scalp of the person who is suffering from a problem of irreversible baldness and as more and more youngsters are falling prey to this hair problem hair transplantation has gained a lot of demand in the present times.

Male pattern thinning and the female pattern thinning are the commonest hair problems of the present times in which the hair follicles once died off cannot grow hair back and only transplantation procedure can get back hair.

The hair transplantation can be done with the strip method or the FUE method. There is a difference in each of these methods and the aim of this article is to highlight on these differences.

Difference 1 - The healing time which is required after the FUE procedure devised by the AHI is approximately 5 days.

Difference 2 - The hair that is implanted gives a very natural look due to the skillful placement of the hair follicles.

Difference 3 - The area at the back and on the sides from which the hair follicles are extracted does not have any scar marks left behind.

Difference 4 - One can expect good density after this procedure which amounts to 70 to 80 hair per square cm.

Now that we have got differences between the other transplantation procedures and the FUE procedure devised by the AHI lets get into the details of each of these right away.

Difference 1 - The healing time which is required after the FUE procedure devised by the AHI is approximately 5 days.

As the punch diameter is nothing more than 0.6 mm to 0.8 mm in size there are no stitches required after this procedure. In fact the healing time is as less as 5 days.

Difference 2 - The hair that is implanted gives a very natural look due to the skillful placement of the hair follicles.

The method which is devised by the AHI that is the Aesthetic Hair Implant who are the global leaders today when it comes to the hair transplantation is so good that they take care of the minutest thing possible while conducting the transplantation procedure. This is a reason why the final outcome after procedure looks absolutely natural and stunning.

Difference 3 - The area at the back and on the sides from which the hair follicles are extracted does not have any scar marks left behind.

As there are no stitches required after this procedure there are no scar marks left behind.

Difference 4 - One can expect good density after this procedure which amounts to 35 to 40 hair per square cm.

This is one of the best densities that one can achieve after the hair transplantation procedure.
