I.

Admins hold the right to judge how they see fit. Arguing will only lead to you being punished. Admins will do whatever they can to uphold the rules of the server. Server rules go before friends and or the opinions of the majority. This is RUST, not a democracy.

II.

You can't build within the road circle. This rule is to stop lag. If you are caught building within the road you will receive a heads up from the admins that your building(s) will be removed.

Are you not online during this moment the building will still be removed without a refund.

Q. Why is there no refund if we are not online?

A. Because we can't prove it's your building.

If you are online and have proven it's your house, you will receive a refund.

You should vacate your house as soon as an admin tells you.

Doing this will result in a one (1) hour ban from the server.

Example:

Player A places a door in player B's building without permission

Doing this will result in player A being punished.

Again, you may only place barricades in someone's house without permission.

X.

You're not allowed to build in or on pre-built structures. Pre-built structures are the buildings placed in the game by the developers. Doing this will result in the building being removed (the player's building, not the pre-built structure).

If you're caught doing this more than once you'll be punished. The punishment may vary.

XI.

It is strictly forbidden to advertise another server. If you advertise another RUST server while playing on this server you will be perma banned.

We can't punish you for advertising outside the server or TS. Advertising a server in RUST or TS will get you permabanned.

Note: you're allowed to advertise your TS, Ventrilo or mumble server as long as it doesn't include an invitation to your RUST server. If an admin tells you to not advertise you have to listen. Go back to rule I.
