BREY | ARTIST & PRODUCER

Bryson Zachary, performing under the name Brey has been killing the Hip-Hop scene not only in his hometown of Frederick, Maryland but also throughout the world. At 18 years old, Brey has performed with artists such as Logic, OCD: Moosh & Twist, Chris Webby and Huey Mack throughout the east coast. He has gained a following nationwide and in worldwide markets as well. Both producing and rapping on tracks, Brey is an ideal double threat following in the footsteps of influences and former successes like J. Cole and Kanye West. Harnessing lyrical skill as well as an unique palette of fresh and dynamic instrumentation Brey is able to capture current trends while setting himself apart in the industry. Brey borrows influence from rappers like Jay Z, Kanye West and Drake, but also from electronic artists like James Blake and Lorde. This diverse set of influences allows for unique tracks that can capture a variety of demographics. For this 18 year old Marylander the sky is the limit, looking towards his next project "Genesis" - It seems Brey has a very bright future ahead.

"Back in August, Maryland rapper Brey dropped one of his most effortless offerings to date, a remix of Jay-Z's Hit-Boy produced SomewhereInAmerica and now, director Chris P has bought the song to life with a simple yet effective visual, shot in the countryside with a slightly contaminated looking but rather dope colour grade. Be on the lookout for some power moves from the 18 year old as we progress into 2014." - Laurens Haines, lozzamusic.com
