HELGHAST UNIFORM DEVELOPMENT

Phase 1

Early initial Helghast uniform. Not very militarised. Mostly ceremonial, as evidenced by lack of practical military utilities such as ammunition pouches and webbing. Uniform uses blue tone; not useful for camouflage- again reinforcing it's ceremonial use. Helmet is bright, round and open, exposing much of the soldier's face.

Phase 2

Helghast Uniform has become more practical, with tactical webbing and utility pouches, as well as tighter-fitting boots. Helmet is also lower on the soldier's face increasing protection. Most notable addition is gasmask, used for Off-World deployments. However deployments are short term, as evidenced by light weight mask design.

Phase 3

Helghast Uniform is now more developed for heavy combat. Body armour added for increased protection, as well as additional equipment and a more protective (and enclosed) helmet. Off-World deployments are now longer and more frequent, requiring a more developed mask.

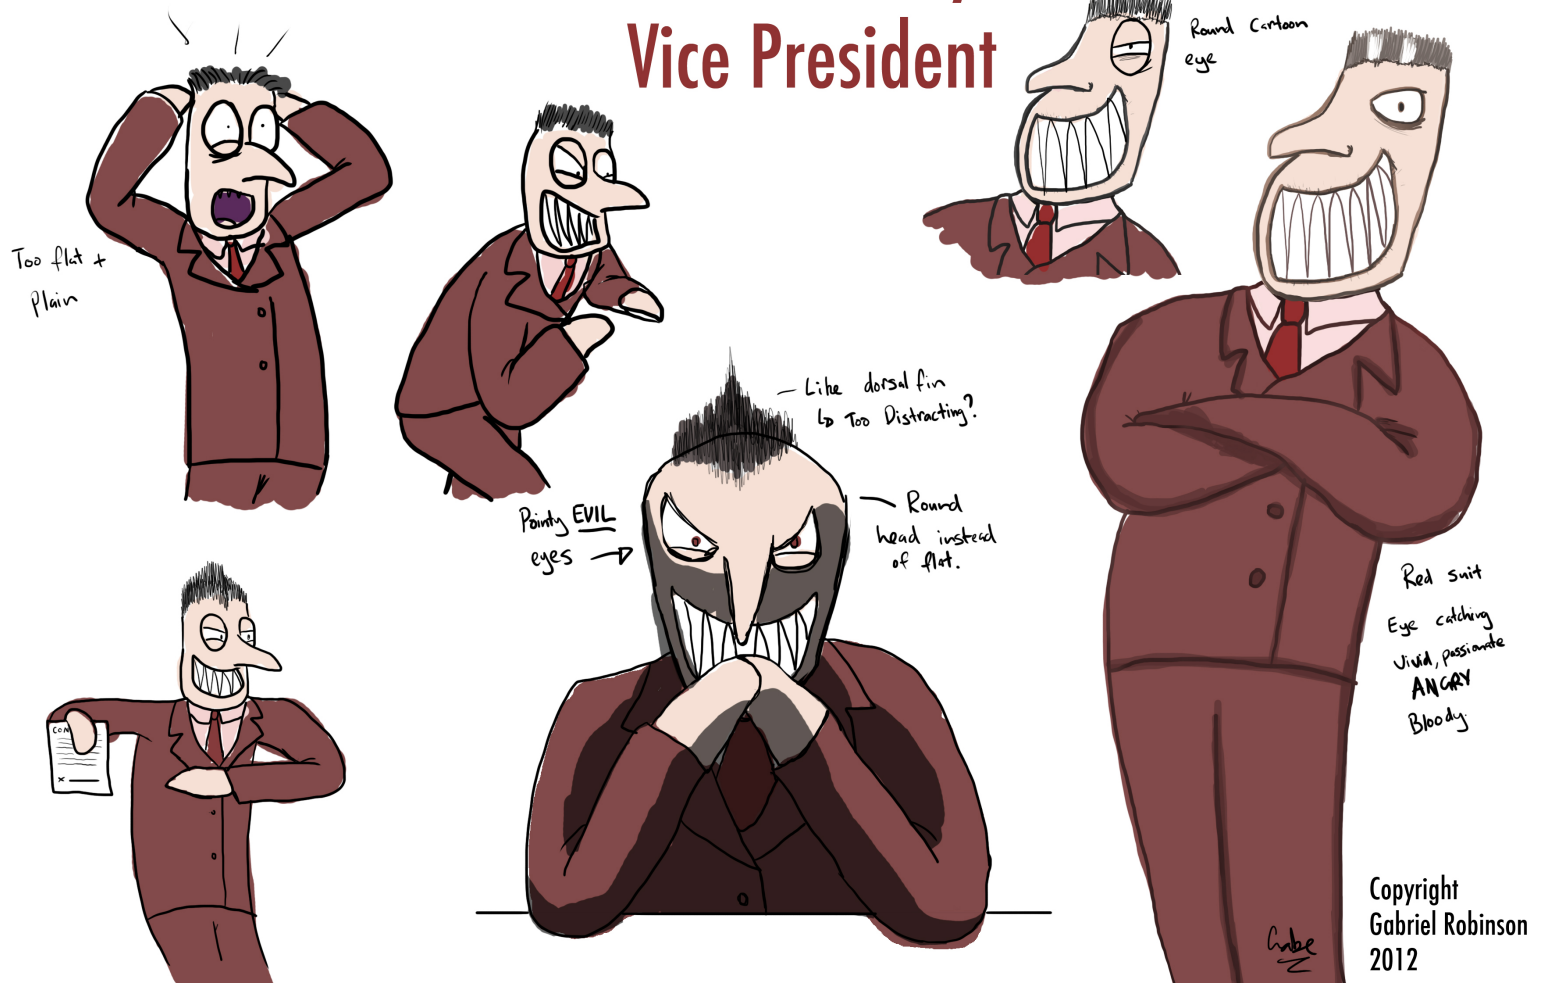

Final Phase

The Helghast uniform has now changed completely to reflect it's political and military intentions. Increased ballistic protection, improved equipment and the addition of HUD system goggles.

The Helghast are now a planet hell bent on interplanetary conquest.

No I AM Australian!

See? I even have my own Kangaroo!

I am totally not
a meerkat in a hat...

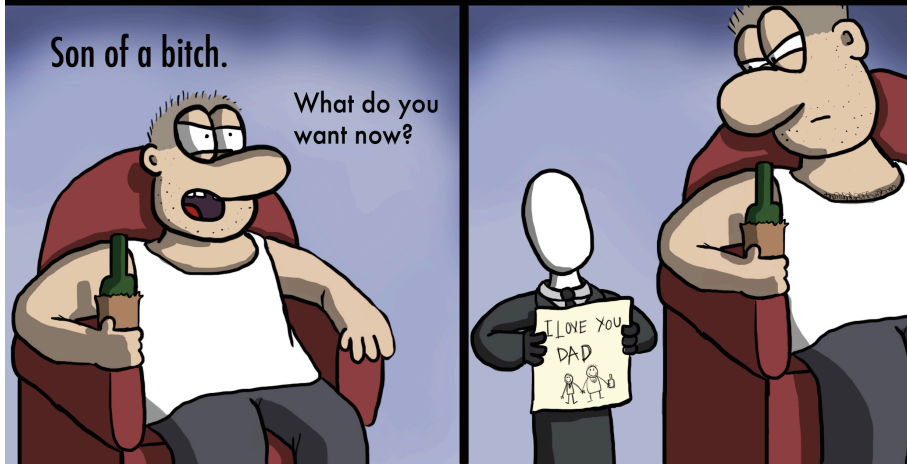

Merry Christmas!

Son of a bitch.

What do you want now?

You little freak!
What have I told you
about sneaking up on me?

You're ruining my game!

Get out of here!
I can't stand the sight of you and neither could your whore of a mother!

Everyone hates you!!

Never come back here again
you hear me?

... NEVER!!
