

Here is an example of Supporting Savants in the process of helping Alonzo Clemons hosting his own auction for his sculptures.

Providing support and research for and to further the cause

Supporting Savants is a charity that strides to explain the phenomenon that occurs in the brain with savants and provide savants with a life that they are happy with.

Since 1990 we started out as a small group with very little money and very little effect on the world however now we are a much larger charity with ambitious funding goals.

Support and Research

SS

We are not just a Support group.

---

- We make sure that a large portion of our funding also gets sent to do research into Savant Syndrome.
- We also push to find causes, explanations, and better therapy practices.

After recent discoveries we need your help.

Our researchers have known that the left brain inhibits the right brain, with this new technology called Transcranial magnetic stimulation, which allows us to temporarily “dim” the left half forcing the right half to speed up to compensate for the left half when this happens the patient will have observation skills almost to that of which a savant has. After working with Professor Allan Snyder we will have the ability to create a “thinking cap” that would enhance the user’s right half for an amount of time.

This savant is incredibly skilled in pinball and we were able to fill his basement with pinball machines.

Why donate?

Savants are an extremely unique type of people that struggle adapting to the world. It is our job to make them feel as welcomed as possible. In the picture above we took name here on a helicopter ride around London and we gave him a canvas to copy down the whole city down, it is small things like this that we do every day.

Apart from making savants life’s better we also try to improve the scientific community through numerous MRI and CAT scans we have paid for of savant to help further the knowledge of psychologists.
