

Photographic Survey

Conducted By D.M.Irving

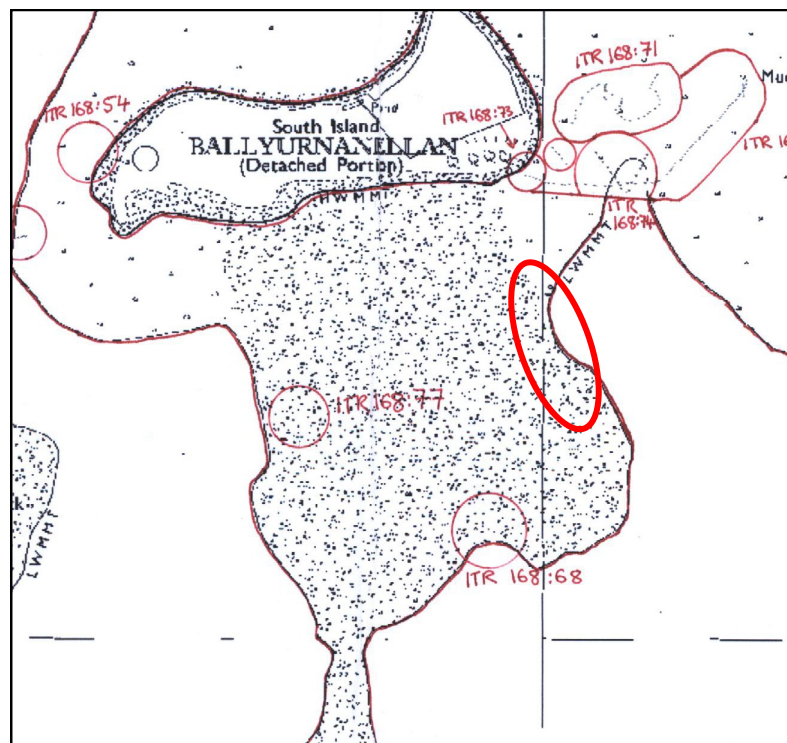

24/5/2015

Greyabbey Bay,
South Island/Ballyurnanellan

Kelp Grid

Description

Immediately to the south of the Raft Launching site MRD 168:056 are the remains of a Kelp Grid, although badly disrupted there are still sufficient alignments to identify the feature. Allowing for the disruption the grid would appear to have been 70m ENE and 150m NW/SE, the kelp and mussel growth are both contributing to the degradation of the grid.

Taken from inside the grid looking north to South Island and showing some of the intact alignments.

Taken from the southern end of the grid and giving a wider view.