MUSIC ECHO POP CHART - SYNOPSIS

Top 100: 1964 December 3 – 1965 July 31.

Top 75: 1965 August 7 – October 9, due to accuracy problems caused by subnormal record sales.

Top 100: 1965 October 16 – December 4

Top 75: 1965 December 11 – 18

Top 20: 1965 December 25, 1965 – 1966 January 1

Top 50: 1966 January 8 - April 16

Music Echo had it's last chart 1966 April 16, joined with Disc and named Disc and Music Echo from April 23.

CHART INCONSISTENCIES

1965 January 16 every hit from 10 and below has been added their position by one, since the chart of that week at left out the Rolling Stones' "Little red rooster" which was the record that really was at position 10, bringing the weeks positions up to 101.

The same happened 1965 April 10 when Wayne Fontanas "Game of love" was left out, presumably at nr. 11 as the week before, however it jumped down all the way to nr. 46 next week.

No no. 42 April 17, 1965. However, the last week column of April 24 has shared 41 positions, Jewel Akens' "The birds and the bees" and Matt Monro's "Without you".

1965 May 8 "Goodbye my love" was left out, next week at last weeks position 29, and all hits at a lower position has been added one, bringing the total to 101 postions.

1965 June 12 chart was reduced to a Top 50 due to postal delays caused by the Bank Holiday. Next weeks last weeks positions fills in most of the missing positions, except 58, 60, 62, 66, 68-69, 75, 77, 80, 83, 85, 87-88, 91-93, 95-96 & 100.

1965 October 2, Universal soldier left out. October 9 gave 35 as last week's position. Every record from 35 to 75 has been added one, bringing the total number of hits on October 2 up to 76.

USE OF SIGNS

* = non – Guinness hit.

/ = double sided hit divide

Behind song title also used in parenthesis to divide between number of chart positions at chart entry date and chart leaving date. Not used at one week only chart runs.

- = divide between tracks of LPs & EPs, as well as between single title and artist

() = Parenthesis used:

- where used in original song title

- around numbers that define chart size at a song's chart entry and leaving dates
