

Cask Me For Anything

Tomatoes from Himachal, H&M from Sweden and single malt from Goa all arrived in Delhi this week.

Across

- 3 Ac & 11 Dn. Ayaz Basrai would love to make a miniature version of this house on Turner Road for his "The Bandra Project" (9,5)
- 5. H&M's upcoming outlet at Saket will also have clothes from its collaboration with this French fashion house (7)
- 8. See 10 Down
- 9. Renowned architect who sources her tiles from Bharat Tiles (4,6)
- 12. The type of climate that accelerates whisky's ageing process (8)
- 13. Fans of the smokier Islay whiskies will like this Paul John single malt (4)
- 14. Chef Ritu Dalmia of Diva Restaurants loves using this grain in her dishes (6)
- 15. Director of The Antarctica Challenge, which will be screened at India Habitat Centre on Tuesday (4,5)

Down

- 1. This industrialist was Bharat Tiles' first customer (2,10)
- 2. Ayaz Bhandari feels that his dollhouse versions of Bandra landmarks and houses will help create architectural records that can aid future _____ (11)
- 4. The type of tomatoes Rahul Prakash in Himachal Pradesh is planting this year (3,7)
- 6. Swedish budget retailer H&M's eco-friendly line uses this type of fabric
- 7. He plays the role of Arnold Albertson in She's Funny That Way (4,6)
- 10 Dn & 8 Ac. Author of Trigger Mortis: A James Bond Novel (7,8)
- 11. See 3 Across

brown
paper bag

