

How to Transform Your Boring Conference Room into an Energetic Space in Just Four Steps?

“Another meeting? Uh! This is the third since morning”- Did you feel this way any time in office? May be the meetings are really boring but the ambiance makes it even more boring. But when important meetings happen in such dull and lifeless rooms and when no one seems interested, it becomes difficult for the convener to conduct the meeting in a happy note. So, how to make the ambiance happening and scintillating? Here are four simple steps that can transform a boring conference room into an energetic office space:

Color the room

What are the ways to create a live atmosphere? Colors. Yes. The conference room can be painted in vibrant colors with some nice themes where in employees feel better and rejoicing. Also when there are dedicated conference rooms for every team, these rooms could be decorated with the trophies and awards that team has won together. Such artifacts can increase the motivation in people.

Magnetize the wall

Ever heard of magnetic paint? These are special paints that magnetize the surface. Particles like iron and magnetite increase the magnetic effect on the wall which makes it easy for photo frames, awards etc to stick on the wall. More coats of paints are applied to increase the magnetic effect so that much more interesting items can stick on the wall. They are available in magnetic color and they create a lively atmosphere.

Add accessories

Why should a conference room have just a projector and screen? You can accessorize the room with a book shelf, a news paper stand and even a small couch where one can relax himself or herself until the meeting starts. Also to make the room look pleasing, adding motivational wall papers or interesting information about the organization, its growth history in pictorial form etc can be a splendid idea to pep up the atmosphere.

Get some mild music

Many conferences might take a little longer to begin so that all attendees can seat themselves comfortable. In the meantime some may tend into surfing their smart phones while some decide to take a power nap as the place is chaotic. To overcome this hurdle, there could be soft and mild music which could be played at the background. This will create an aesthetic atmosphere where in people can actually enliven their cheerful mood.

Also these techniques might make the employees feel happy and joyous, which will increase their alertness quotient. The mere thought that company is working hard to make them feel better and ignited makes the employees shun their boredom and participate in meetings, group discussions, teleconferences etc with an open mind and eagerness which is always a welcome change!
