Some people are creating an imaginative bogey out of an imaginative boy, and yelling "boy, boy, boy" as if they had no BF before marriage, nor a son after marriage! Whenever other women (who are weaker in intellect in most of the cases as is believed by themselves) find someone intelligent girl, they start taking her to be a "guy". It is a fact and you can infer it safely from the comments and posts of others and also the messages of the admin.

I have lost interest in the group. Let me see who else is there to keep it active.

She thinks that I am unknown to her. Her memory is fading, otherwise she would have easily realised that we used to have tea together in 1998-2001 when we were in KMV.

All the members can easily see that this group was dead since its inception. One year had elapsed since its creation and yet no one could post anything more than a handful of tuchchi-si posts (of course, everyone does not know how to express one's views), and it was me who made it somewhat active and here lied the reason for Sonia Handa's unwarranted jealousy! So friends, make sure you hit like to Sonia's every post and like her that page delivering quack tips (Neem Hakeem Khatra-E-Jaan) on her newly created page, otherwise she will pick and choose another girl to create such controversies.

And, here I upload the video of my facebook profile to prove that there is not even a single message in my profile - neither in inbox, nor in the filtered messages nor archive. It belies her allegation that I used to chat with "girls". Now I have proved that Sonia is suffering from some paranoia or has some vested interest to misguide the members of the group - for reasons best known to her alone.

Here comes another false allegation from the Admin, Sonia Handa, that I was a guy and used to chat with "girls".

First, I am not a member of a LGBT group nor a lesbian. Secondly, I openly challenge her to come forward with even a single girl who I have chatted with.

It is now an open challenge to her in the public group and she MUST take up the gauntlet to bring the truth in front of the group members, or else concede her defeat.

Friends, today after seeing the quarrel between me and Sonia Handa, all of you must have missed the following (attached) scene of the movie "China Gate", right? 😊

Ladies and Gentlemen and Uncles & Aunts,

You need to answer these....lest it should be too late to make amends.... U decide who's right and who's wrong. Public opinion is supreme.

At the very outset, let me remind the concerned person that this is not someone's "baap ka group"; it is a public group and it is against the policy of the Facebook (which you sign at the time of creating a group but hardly go through the same) that you shall not discriminate against a member. It is incumbent upon Facebook to decide whether a profile is fake or genuine one, and the Admin has no right to poke her stinking nose into others' matters and lives. Some semi-literate or educated illiterates think the position of an "Admin" of a group on par with that of the "President of the US"!

Here the so-called Admin Sonia Handa, showing her cheap Indian mentality, has imputed motives on my profile without any rhyme or reason. A classic example proving a woman jealous of another woman. Here the reason for jealousy was that my posts were getting more likes than she got for her posts/shares. (See the attached picture to know the incredulous reason for her suspicion!). She had been chatting with a girl about me yesterday evening and the girl she was chatting with was my online friend who shared the same with me.

She alleges that I am operating a fake profile. Ask her to adduce even a single evidence to substantiate this allegation. If someone alleges something, the burden to prove the allegation lies on him/her, and it is not the other way round. Even if for the sake of arguments, it is assumed that I am fake, what kind of concrete fact she can present before the members to prove that it is a fake Guy and not a fake Girl? Creating a fake profile is not a crime; it is in consonance with the constitutional right to freedom of speech and expression as envisaged in the Constitution of India. It is not a penal offence to create a profile UNTIL you use it for criminal activities. I request the members to demand some sort of evidence from her to prove that I am a fake person and that too a guy.

Now I ask the following questions from the group members:

- (1) Assuming that I am a fake person, did anyone of you ever receive any friend request from me?
- (2) Did anyone of you find me intruding into your privacy by sending messages or asking you to add me to your profile?
- (3) Did anyone of you ever noticed me spying on you?
- (4) Did I ever posted even a disturbing or defamatory comment on the post of any member of the group?
- (5) Did I ever create public nuisance even for a second, and did you ever notice me engaged in any other activity except posting some jokes or speaking my heart out?

There are 8 members in the group who knew ab initio that I was a fake girl. When I received the friends-requests from some members, in the very first reply I made it clear that I would not add them as I was not the one they were believing me to be. I did not want to misrepresent myself. This is called moral values and upbringing - not to take undue advantage of anything. Just because Sonia Handa did not know it or she was not informed (and why the hell should one inform her?), it does not mean that she has right to commit the criminal offence of defaming anyone in the group. This is the problem with typical Indians who form their opinion according to their own faulty perceptions and indulge into moral policing.

She thinks that I have vanished from the group - another misconception that exists only in her brain and is quite evident from the picture No.2 attached.

One should never stretch the things to such a level where the past should come to haunt in the present. From now on, she will be so paranoid as to add the females to this group thinking that it is me. That's called instilling the fear in the mind of others

Notice my comments. I have been using the term "Didi" for every female member in the group; Guys are not in the group or else I would have called them Bhaiyya. From the college days of KMV, she used to think herself nothing short of Miss Universe and even now her arrogance is still intact despite the age taking its toll on her physique. One is beautiful not due to exterior but the mind and intrinsic value of a human being. Beauty is skin deep.
