

Gaia Project Recife

Gaia is a project that shows the children the importance of preserving the environment and recycling while having contact with people of different cultures and perspectives. In Recife we have different environments and lots of fauna/flora around the city and outside that need to be taken care of.

We believe that by educating the children on environmental issues, we'll be able to reduce greatly the amount of damage taken by the environment in our city and creating a more sustainable city for the future.

To have a successful project, you can follow the 4 Rs of Environmental Protection:

- Rethinking: Make them aware of the processes of environmental education, reflecting on our actions, which impacts and how you can change that reality thinking at best. In a second step, the end of the project is extremely important to rethink the whole exercised practice, causing the participant internalize everything learned and how the role of his continuation will provide a great benefit to their environment;
- Reduce: Make possible sustainable consumption, make them understand the economy and relevance of each wild action;
- Reuse: Reuse the most of the resources in the same way or another, using creativity to the effectiveness;
- Recycle: Turn what would theoretically no longer useful into something relevant.
