Back in 2006 I began a somewhat unorthodox foray into the world of architecture and design by accepting an internship offer from a prominent local architect's office. Since then I have remained in professional practice alongside my formal (and informal) education. In that time, I have been responsible for a plethora of design work, not limited simply to architecture. Yet, architecture has been my most consistent focus and with that I have been involved in various aspects of design and construction, across a broad range of projects: from cutting-edge sustainable housing and custom furniture design, to master planning in areas of outstanding natural beauty. Despite the demands of professional practice, I have also led a successful and passionate life in academia, receiving many awards and commendations for my work. Most recently, I have completed a Master of Arts in Architectural History and Theory, which has led me to new depths of intellectual insight and instilled in me a broad fascination with the arts and philosophy in general. Right now, I'm keen to diversify my experience further within the wider world of art and design.
