

1. What is “adaptive capacity”?
 - a. The capacity for an organism to change into an entirely new organism.
 - b. The capacity for an ecosystem or group of people to rapidly adapt to a changing environment.
 - c. The capacity for a person to adapt to societal pressures of beauty by purchasing and wearing lots of salmon colored makeup.
 - d. The capacity for salmon to migrate upstream while fighting off hungry bears.

2. What is a key component of Nation Building?
 - a. Having a good relationship with the Federal government.
 - b. Having a strong relationship with future presidential candidates.
 - c. Having a strong tribal government that is thinking about the future.
 - d. Having a good relationship with the state the Nation is located within.

3. Which of the following is the best definition of Nation Building?
 - a. Constructing or structuring a national identity using the power of the sun.
 - b. Constructing or structuring a strong tribal nation using the government, tribal members, and a plan for the future.
 - c. Constructing or structuring a large group of buildings on a tribal reservation because there are no buildings there.
 - d. Constructing or structuring a pan-Indian identity by allowing all tribes to create the same urban development program.

4. Which of the following is an example of adaptive capacity?
 - a. A tribe realizes they live in a state that they do not like, so they decide all tribal members should move to a different state.
 - b. A tribe realizes they have lost their keys on the way to their office, so they begin asking all of the tribal members where the keys could be.
 - c. A tribe realizes that they live in an area where there are no longer big game animals to hunt, so they decide that they must all be vegan.
 - d. A tribe realizes they no longer have access to traditional fishing areas, so they begin fishing for new fish at a different location.