

Serious Problems of Young, Entry-Level Workers

- Absent from work too frequently or for questionable reason.
- The unwillingness to follow company policies (dress code, honest and truthfulness, etc.)
- Has to be supervised too much of the time.
- The lack to get along with co-workers. Poor attitude.
- Takes no initiative when something needs to be done.
- Isn't very observant; fails to recognize errors or problems.
- Lack of personal hygiene, neatness of appearance and image.
- Doesn't listen well.
- Arrives late or leaves early too often.
- The lack to work effectively with customers.
- Doesn't consider the consequences of decisions or actions.
- Too much socializing with other workers or visitors.
- Can't accept suggestions or criticism.
- Doesn't seem to care about doing a job well.