It complements the N series research instrument Since its creation in 1878, the management reports to the minister and works related the General Staff of the army (EMA). To oversee cavalry units, she runs Also their staff (1^{er} office), and has a horse service provision (2^e office).

Producer Overview

General Organization

By the decree of 26 March 1878, the cavalry service leaves the general direction of personnel and equipment and is the second direction. It retains this form throughout the period, despite some internal changes.

its creation, the new management has three offices: the cavalry of the staff, the runs, and the gendarmerie and military justice, united until 1880. The latter going to the direction of litigation in 1899¹. As for the police, it is transformed into Sub-Directorate in February 1918 until the end of hostilities² Before becoming a direction full in October 1920. By contrast, the sub-directorate of the train, dependent management of artillery, is attached to the cavalry in 1928, ten years after its creation. The That same year, the section of the veterinary service, created in 1925³, As it becomes a sub direction.

¹Decree of 13 January 1899. See GR 9 NN 10 / 1-25.

²Decree of January 21, 1918.

³By Ministerial Decision of December 7, 1925.

It was in 1934 that the 2^e management reached its maximum size: the technical section reports to the Director of the firm obtained a separate existence of the latter and the creation a service dates back to the Levant strengthens land management outside France.

The cavalry units were little changed until the first world war. The law of managers and staff of March 13, 1875 fixed the distribution of regiments 1 :

- Two regiments of cuirassiers (same in 1913);
- Twenty-six dragons (thirty-two in 1913);
- Twenty hunters on horseback (twenty three in 1913);
- Twelve Hussars (fourteen in 1913);
- Four hunters in Africa (same in 1913);
- Three Spahis (six in 1913).

The units were modernized in 1930 and 1939 exist:

- Three cavalry divisions, in which change four dragoon regiments and hunters, three regiments of dragoons charged, two regiments of hussars and cuirassiers, and two groups of armored cars (AMC);
- Two light mechanized divisions (DML), composed of three regiments of dragoons and cuirassiers, and two of dragoons;
- Three cavalry groups, composed of four regiments of dragoons, two hussars and hunters, one of cuirassiers, and two groups of AMC;
- Two brigades of Spahis, which include three regiments of Algerian Spahis and Moroccan Spahis regiment.
- Four combat brigades, eleven tanks regiments and a workers chariots.

allocations

The functions of each organ of the direction we are known through editions Annual of the Official Directory of the French army, which describe summarily. File analysis also allowed to highlight certain characteristics own cavalry without however providing detailed chart.

The firm assumes the same functions as in other directions. it centralizes information, and participates in its distribution in offices. The Directory of army officers this active and its functions in 1914, "General questions concerning several Services Officer of the Cavalry. Mail, private secretariat director. Organization, mobilization, training of cavalry, staff utilization. 2 "

The firm thus disseminate and implement the instructions of the General Staff of the Armed (EMA) to within units, and ensures in particular the implementation of mobilization plans. He deals Also training of staff.

It is attached a technical section, presented as a body of study. A note Management at EMA, dating from 1921, developing its activities in charge of the analysis regulations and collaboration in their drafting, it also carries out studies, experiments and tests on equipment of the horse and equestrian sport. Finally, it writes the Cavalry Journal.

1 er office, said "the cavalry office staff," or more frequently "office cavalry "logically manages staff, and more specifically officers. The School of Cavalry application of Saumur, considered an establishment special reports directly to him.

²According to the Official Directory of the officers of the active army, in 1914.

The 2^e office concentrates on the back, which provides horses for the army, but his organization remains unclear. The Directory of officers of the active army this: "Organization and Administration of the General Service dates: (Interior, Algeria, Tunisia, Levant), preparation and implementation of the budget, establishment of the annual control and exceptional or additional orders, sales. organization and horse administration institutions from within. Organization and Administration goes institutions, stud, depots and stations stallions Algeria-Tunisia, Morocco and the Levant. Horses ready. Service dates of the officers and persons of all grades and all weapons. Identification and designation of horses, mares, mules and mules. Preparatory arrangements for the requisition of animals. Accounting of all funds services and facilities of the cavalry. Records of the back service General. School Accounting application cavalry. "

If the office of returns has overall responsibility for the management of horses throughout territory, the different decentralized structures make reading of its powers difficult. Indeed, it is working with the services of the back to the inside, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco, and the Levant.

The back is an old concern of the Ministry of War. By 1831, a Ordinance establishes the "service of general back" to provide animals the military and centralize purchasing. A statement of 27 October 1902 lists the attributions the service of the inner back, now separate from North Africa, and clarify its role in the identification and ¹ animals. All activities are supervised by the Inspector General of the run, which relays the information to the second office. To crisscross the territory, the statement retains the original organization districts runs, in which deposits care for the horses before assignment to a military unit. Ski jumpers of the companies providing the service these deposits.

But the decree of December 10, 1926 removes the military services of the dates and dissolves the timing groups of riders. In the interests of economy, ministry Agriculture becomes the sole authority to make buying horses for the army. An agent Central manages the accounts of new purchasing department, which are paid credits army ². Seconded officers are still deputies: a general officer appointed inspector of the military goes back and control the overall organization of purchases and the Deliveries from 1^{er} October 1927 ³. Each year, the army sent its needs Ministry of Agriculture, which organizes shopping sessions, chaired by committees made up of civilian and military. The animals are then transferred to Horse transition institutions, who have no vocation to raise young horses but merely to provide transit to the military units. The Decree of 10 December 1926 induced including the closure of several deposits back: Angers, Arles, Gueret Merignac, and Montrouge.

The implementation of this reform seems to have asked a lot of problems and raised reluctance within the military. A report by the General control of the army dated 1937 underlines in particular the failure of this enterprise: the statement of 15 June 1927, which put in instead the provisions of Decree Law 1926 was remodeled several times without compromise convincing the two departments and if savings could be substantial, changes in allocations disrupted the proper commands.

As the 1926 Decree is it repealed and replaced by another, dated 25 June 1934, which new charging the Ministry of War to make the horse purchases. The credits continue to be paid to the Ministry of Agriculture until 1938, which marks the return to a clear separation between the administration and the Haras office runs.

The service runs in Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco takes a parallel form similar to that of the service of the inner back. Since 1853, three companies ski jumpers are organized around the deposit back Blida, Oran, Constantine and stud Mostaganem. In 1913, a law specifically affects another Tunisia company, located in Tébouba. They are also involved in "service breeding, "which partly compensates the absence of administering the stud outside France. The partial melting of the stud and the service goes from the inside in 1926 thus did not affected North Africa. The Decree-Law of 25 June 1934 attempts to standardize the situation and provides the passage of this specific service to agriculture. But the two ministries face a problem of staff: no commitment to serve outside metropolitan territory could be imposed on the stud officials and volunteers were scarce. The following year the decree is repealed, and the returns of service North Africa finds its previous allocations ×. A final act of December 10, 1937 creates a "purchasing department", which allocates orders among different deposits become "Equestrian facilities", and deals with local purchasing committees.

The statement of 6 February 1934 governs the service dates back to the Levant. placed under the authority of the general commanding the cavalry troops of the Levant, it consists only for a supply company, based in Beirut. The only deposit, also located in Beirut is assisted by the Annexes back of Aleppo and Damascus; all three have a committee purchase.

The permanent general inspection of returns oversees these three territorial services. According to the statement of 7 September 1937, purchases are made by the purchase committees, compounds and veterinary officers in active service, operating under the authority of Inspector General of the run. This is the technical officer of the department in the preparation of orders, allocation of purchase orders between committees and monitoring their implementation; monitoring of horse establishments transition and maintenance of horses that are kept there; the establishment of quotas, their management and delivery to the bodies and services; Regional officers of returns; studying measures to encourage the breeding of animals needed for the army. His role thus goes well beyond that of a traditional inspector, and justifies the inclusion of these Documents in the fund management of the cavalry.

Each service goes meets specific legislation, but on the eve of the Second World War, everywhere a tendency to centralized purchasing, on Cross crisis of the horse. Many reports including evoke not a drop significant purchases in the 1930s, a result of the automation of the cavalry and Artillery. The bought back nearly 13 000 animals in 1908, it buys half less in 1933. The breeding is logically affected, whose relations testify the administration of the War with professionals.

Custodial history

Documents Officer of the cavalry were repatriated from Russia in two stages between 1994 and 2000. Most has been robbed by the Germans in the Ministry, subsequent to the French defeat. After a pre-sorting the documents considered policy were sent to Berlin. Recovered by the USSR at the end of World War II world, they have been stored and processed in Moscow until their rediscovery in the early 1990.

We therefore difficult to trace the exact history of conservation. The presence of Many rusty trombones and traces of moisture nevertheless suggests to us that these archives have not benefited from specific conservation measures. A few photographs and very friable plans have suffered, but overall the fund remains in a satisfactory condition, given the movements of which he was the subject.

Presentation of content and interest fund

Moscow repatriated archives provide additional weight to some articles Inventory of the N series, devoted to the archives III ^e Republic in terms of ranking Department of the Army. Made in the 1970s, it includes thirty articles on the 2 ^e direction. Over the period 1870-1919, very few records have been preserved, even if they offer a glimpse of several organs of management: the office, the office of the gendarmerie and military justice, the technical section ... On the period of the interwar period, some items complement the Moscow fund, including about the sub-directorate of the train.

The repatriated archives span the III ^e Republic, despite some differences according to the structures. If the firm's records often date back to the 1930s, the two offices usually keep older archives produced in the first quarter XX ^e century.

This fund contains elements that provide insight into the evolution of the cavalry during the III ^e Republic. Many documents reflect the context of voltage of the interwar period, and the concern of the Ministry about the future of tear. It includes its major developments, including the question of its engine. Historiography could decry the cavalry, emphasize its obsolescence and responsibility in the 1940 debacle; few specific studies and technical documents of the firm's director and technical section to qualify this information by providing point lights on the progress of the modernization programs, even if one may deplore the lack of archives relating to theoretical debates or employment doctrine.

The office of the cavalry offers an interesting insight on the daily life of the body troop of cavalry, through cases over the regiments. It comprises also a number of articles on managing officers. But in total, less than two linear meters that evoke its activities; these documents are to consult in addition to running logs and operations, and other archives produced by the units.

However, the office of runs appears accurately reflect production documentary of the early twentieth ^e century. Part of the ranking of activities and

Census has been the subject of previous eliminations, but the entire collection of files deposits and dates of schedules has been preserved.

Finally, we must emphasize the presence of anecdotal documents emanating sub directions of the train and the veterinary service. The first of the archives are mostly kept in the direction of artillery, but those seem to have the veterinary service faded away.

archival processing

The direction of the cavalry suffered the same treatment as other repatriated funds Russia. A first back part in 1994, has been the subject of a first tool Research published in 1997. It includes for this direction a hundred cartons or 15 linear meters. But following the repatriation of other closely archives Further in 2000, the history of the defense department has decided to take all records to merge. The recently returned 3.6 linear meters were therefore integrated into all having been outsourced ranking.

When classifying the question arose as to maintain the integrity of the records shall by the Germans and the Russians. Analyzes in both languages indicate that indeed their archivists realized a working understanding of the issues. If it appears that the Nazis have used the relevant documents to the secret services and racial propaganda Soviet summarily analyzed and listed nearly all bundles. yet the disorder due to foreclosures and the language barrier led them to group files seemingly unrelated.

1, the

This necessitated perform many divisions to favor a certain logic Intellectual and organic rankings, documentary that traces the production of the time. This is particularly the case for the technical section of the cavalry, and sub-directions train and Veterinary Service, Articles, very heterogeneous, were to appear separately.

Page numbering and the classification made in 1930 offices could help us. This classification divides more records, but provides a level of description finer. Almost all of the documents has been preserved: only double and two accused dossiers receiving and payment slips were eliminated. A Quarantine Carton troops registry was withdrawn from funds cavalry to be under the 2YB score and ten articles were also reassigned to general inspection of the cavalry. Two officers of files had slipped into the Archives 1^{er} office ; they were reinstated at Ye series.

The filing plan follows the organizational structure of the management of the cavalry. Despite the lack of information and lack of organization charts, some records have helped reconstruct the core functions of each organ, with the help of directories Officials of the French army. The few studies on the transformation of the cavalry in the 1930s were also able to assist in the understanding of certain files difficult, in which the producer is not always identified.

The filing plan reflects the various activities of the director's office. Yes

Sometimes the organization and mobilization tend to converge, it seemed preferable to the separate, to highlight the different mobilization plans.

The technical section arise however some problems. Its functions are well known but its place in the organizational chart remains unclear. Directories describe it as a body "in relation to the office of Director". It seems to be directly attached, which confirms the establishment plan for the mobilization of 2^e direction. By Moreover, it is sometimes difficult to differentiate its functions from those of the firm's war material. The question has arisen to bring all these files within the section, but no apparent link with the technical section forced us to separate them.

The second office is subject to a ranking both organic and thematic. Despite legislative profusion, it was sometimes difficult to reconstruct the complete structure. If the sources report a "general back service", it is divided into three zones Location: the metropolis, North Africa and the Levant. The importance of the material Service of domestic dates identified in it the role of procurement committees deposits back whose responsibilities are specified in the decrees. The back of constituencies have suffered particularly on procurement reforms and therefore prove very moving during the period. This filing plan corresponds to the year 1914, when they reach their maximum size.

The adopted classification scheme, both organic and theme reflects the organization of the direction of the cavalry in outline. The absence of details on the administration of the time, the internal organization of the firm and the offices thus follows a logical order and based on relations with the General Staff and military units.

The fund management of the cavalry had suffered great spoliation during the Second World War ; repatriated the archives of Russia therefore largely complete Inventory of the N series documents the director's office and the office runs now reflect production documentary of the interwar period, and should help enrich the historiography of the engine or the horse breeding in the army.
