About "all I want." + me

Just like the cinematic opening, coming to terms with this song concept was a slow, but beautiful process. I was in a weird place of temporary encounters and fake friends. I had to step back and ask myself what the point was to everything I was doing and the people I was around. You grow up and you just look for more.

As the opening to the 5-track EP (dropping in February 2017), it perfectly sets up the rest of the project to touch on growing up and dealing with new love that's hard to maintain.

I write everything into my music. I don't speak out loud about what I'm actually feeling most of the time. But you listen to my songs, my mixtapes, my albums and you get it. You understand. People tell me that they're inspired and connect to what I do. That's so wild to me, but exactly why I do what I do.
