

OnePlanet Week 2017

In week 6 of the Spring term (13th-19th Feb) the university will be hosting OnePlanet Week. This is a week of awareness raising events that hope to get staff and students involved in becoming more sustainable.

We need your help us with event ideas!

If you can think of any event ideas that will achieve our aims of increasing sustainability in the student and staff population or demonstrating the things that the university is already doing in sustainability please fill out the form below (closing date: Monday Week 9).

This will be a great way to get involved in university life and (if you're a student) gain points towards the YorkAward and put something on your CV.

OnePlanet is an initiative that works on the idea that we are currently using 3 times the resources that the planet has available. Using the 10 OnePlanet principles we are hoping to put on a week of fun and inspiring events that will get people interested and educated in sustainability. <https://oneplanetyork.co.uk/>
