

Using Progressive Invoicing In QuickBooks and Help For QuickBooks W2 Form

QuickBooks is the accountancy software for the small and mid order businesses and at present the number one in the world. You have the option to go for the progressive invoicing through QuickBooks when you are dealing with a particular small scale business.

When you generate the quote for the particular project or the payments are done at the stages or at the fixed milestones, you do not want to display the complete amount of the project to be provided. You display the amount that is billed. This is called as progressive invoicing and one can do this in the business accounting software QuickBooks. You can follow the procedure for this or else take the professional tech support for QuickBooks if not able handle this particular area by self.

Progressive invoicing preference to be turned on

In the QuickBooks accounting business software, you have to turn on the progressive invoicing preference. For this, you have to move to the edit menu and after that choose preferences. Then on the left side, you can choose jobs and estimates. You can go beneath the company preferences tab and click on the yes button to both -Do you create estimates? and Do you do progress invoicing?

Estimate transaction

The Estimate functionality resembles creation of the invoice and makes use of the similar item list as one would have created had he actually generated the invoice. But there are certain differences associated with the Estimate transaction. You have to consider these differences keeping them as a preference. Know that estimate does not carry an impact on accounting books meaning that it is non-posting transaction. For the tracking of the estimated cost, there is inclusion of column in Estimate. These are also used for detecting the price of the customer. This provides you a surety.

Commence invoice for part of Estimate

When the Estimate transaction is generated and the task is commenced, you can commence invoice for part of Estimate. When you create invoice button across top of estimate, you can generate invoice for entire Estimate or for a particular percentage of Estimate or for choosing individual lines on estimate transaction. As you generate the invoices, accounting business software QuickBooks keeps complete vigil of what is left open.
