About Our Book

We are 4th and 5th graders from the STEM Institute of Manhattan. Over the past few weeks we have been learning about America in the 1800's. Not about Presidents or wars or rich and powerful people, but instead about working people and slaves. Even though these people were building America, there aren't many books or paintings about them. We imagined their stories, and compared them to our own stories.

Problems today

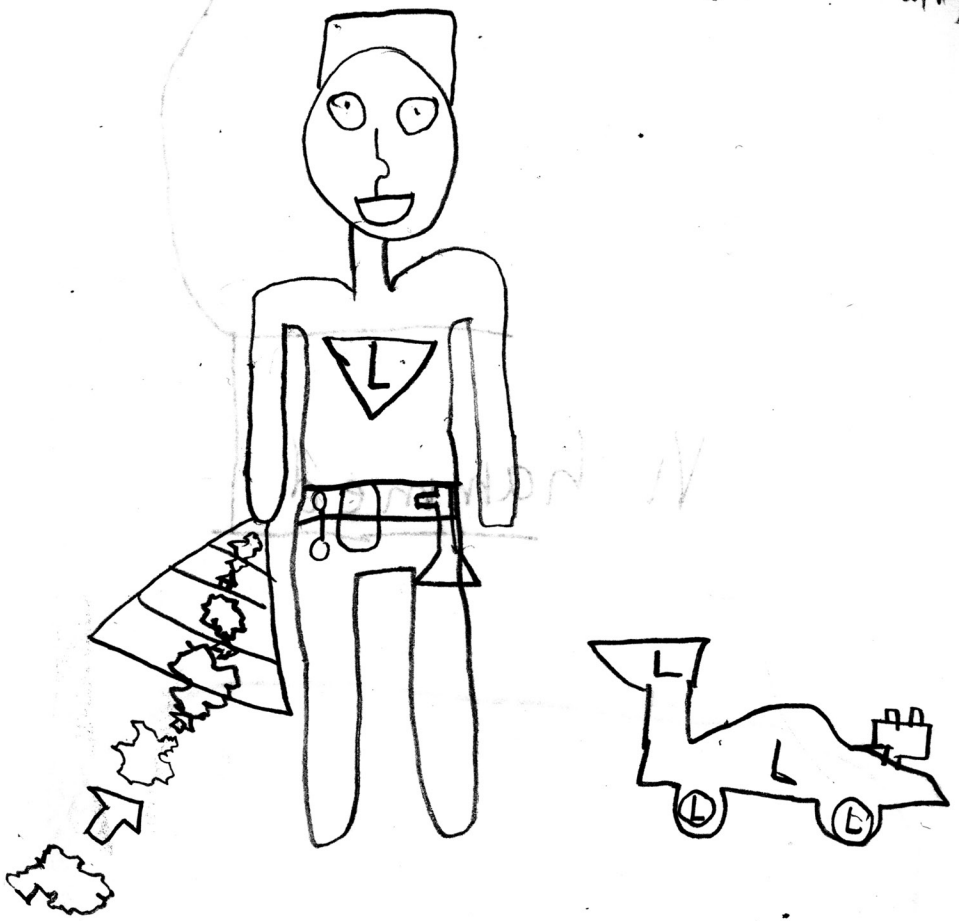

What are problems that are worth fighting for in 2016?

A problem that is worth fighting for in 2016 is racist people.

As a superhero, I would fight against trespassing. I will fight against that because trespassing is not good. You are obeying someone good. Also you should never do that, it's not good.

As a superhero, I would fight against littering

As a superhero, I would fight against litter. When he comes upon litter, he has the ability to shrink Garbage.

If I was a superhero, I would fight against drug dealers because a lot of people are dying because of drugs. It's very sad for the kids that died Mom and dad.

I would go out in space and throw the the pollution onto mars. I will save the world.
He flew back to earth. A old lady said thank you to me.

Fighting for Freedom

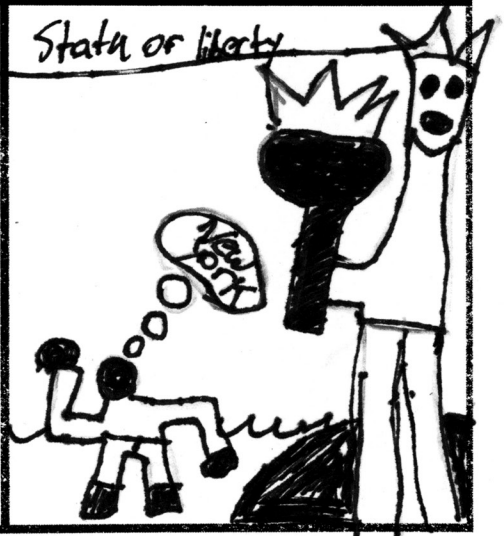

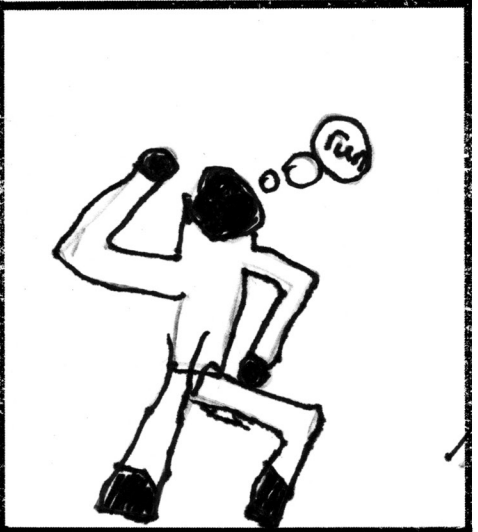

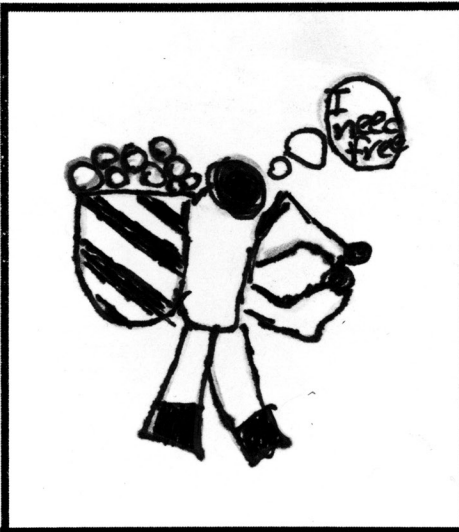

In the 1800s, slaves lived in horrible conditions. They fought for their freedom through big actions and everyday resistance

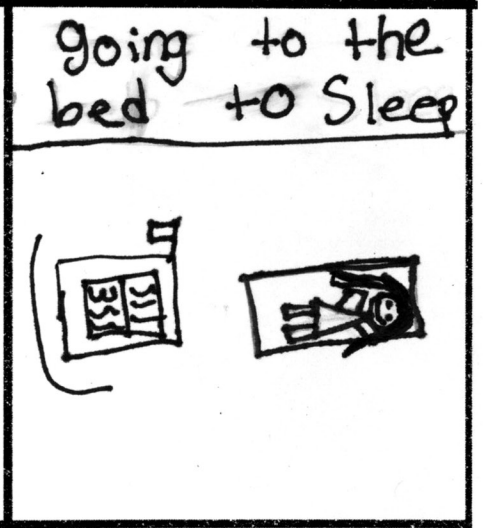

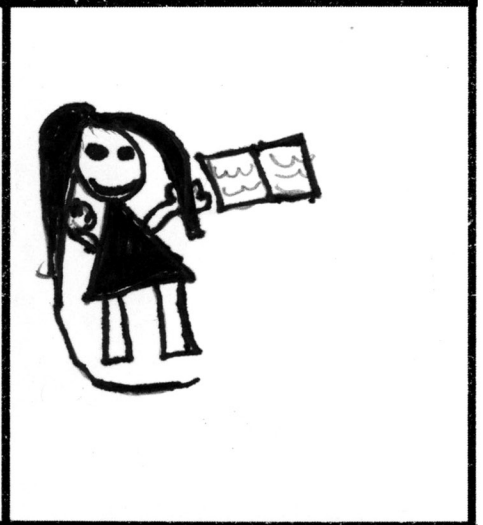

Freedom

I am escaping today Looking to see if somebody is looking running in the woods the Freedom!!!

It is Dangerous for slaves to read and write in the night because their master can come out of nowhere and snatch the books hit them or hang them on a tree that is why slave have to hide the books and go to sleep very fast.

Running Away

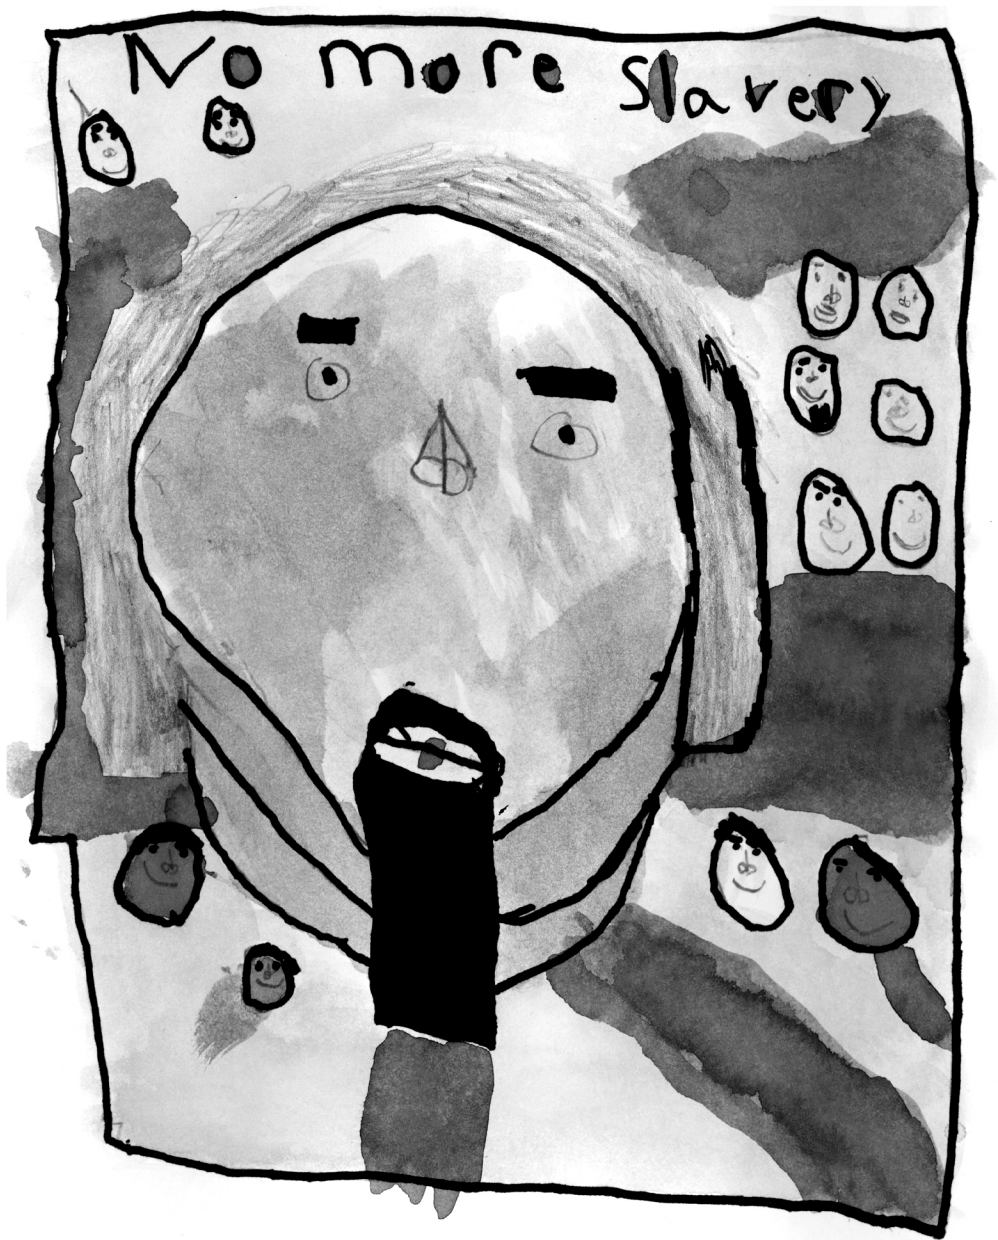

Freedom Fighters
People have fought
up to this day.

It is important that we continue to fight for freedom and an end to racism so that we can all get along with each other.

Harriet Tubman escaped from slavery in Maryland and became an Underground Railroad conductor. Traveling at night, she led hundreds of slaves to freedom.

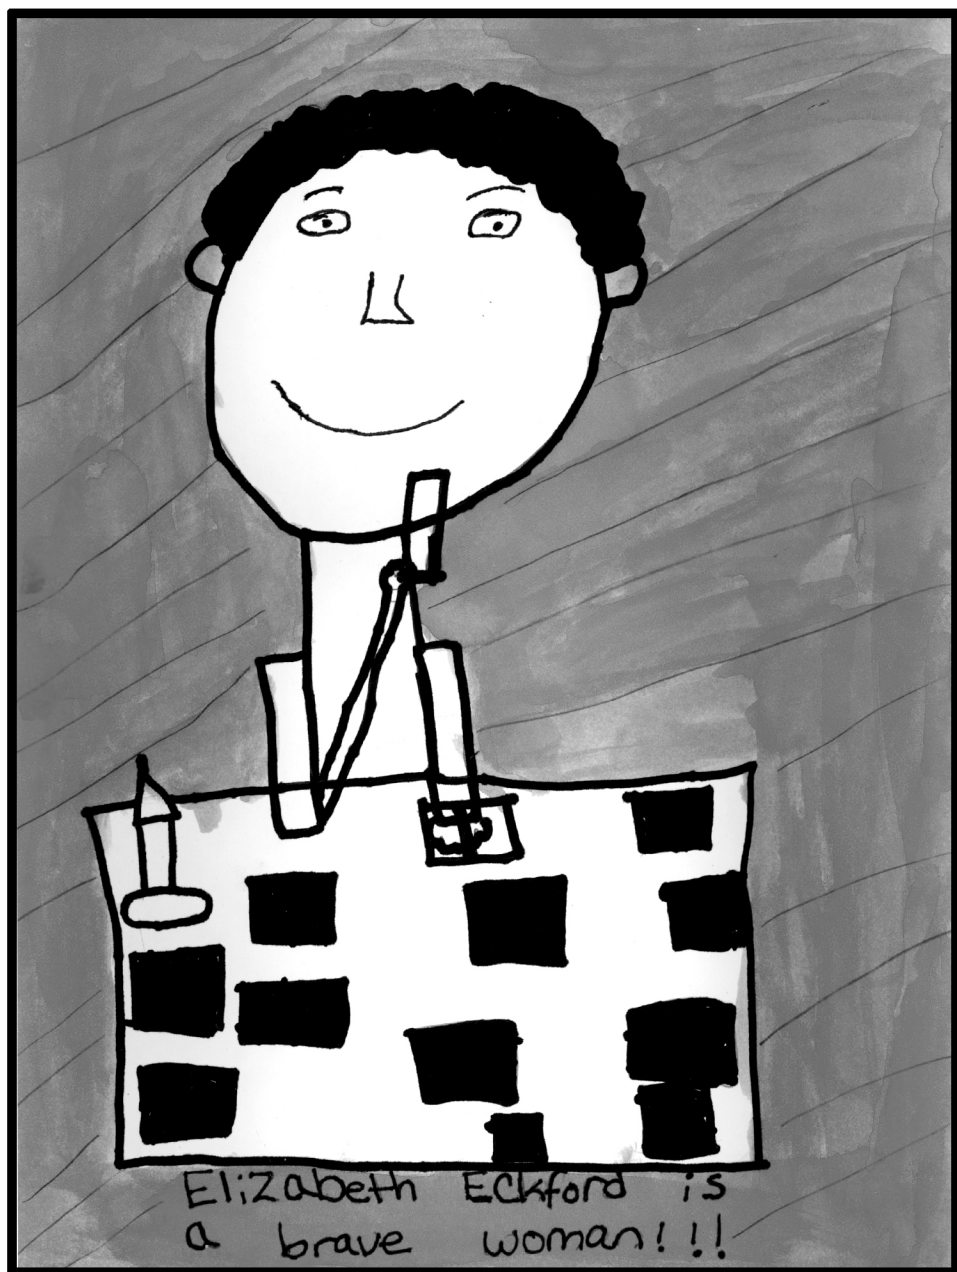

Frederick Douglass escaped slavery and became a national voice in the abolition movement. He published his own newspaper, gave speeches all over the country, and advised presidents.

Robert Smalls was a slave and a sailor in South Carolina. He led an uprising aboard a confederate ship and sailed to freedom, saving his crew and their families.

Ida B. Wells was a journalist who led an anti-lynching crusade in the late 1800s, publishing her work even when her own life was threatened.

Elizabeth Eckford was one of the Little Rock Nine, a group of black teenagers who stood up against angry white mobs and the Arkansas National Guard to integrate an all-white school.

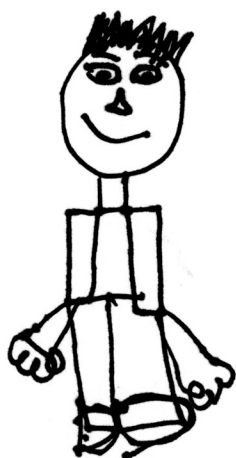

Muhammad Ali was a world heavyweight champion who promoted black pride, spoke out about racism, and protested the vietnam war.

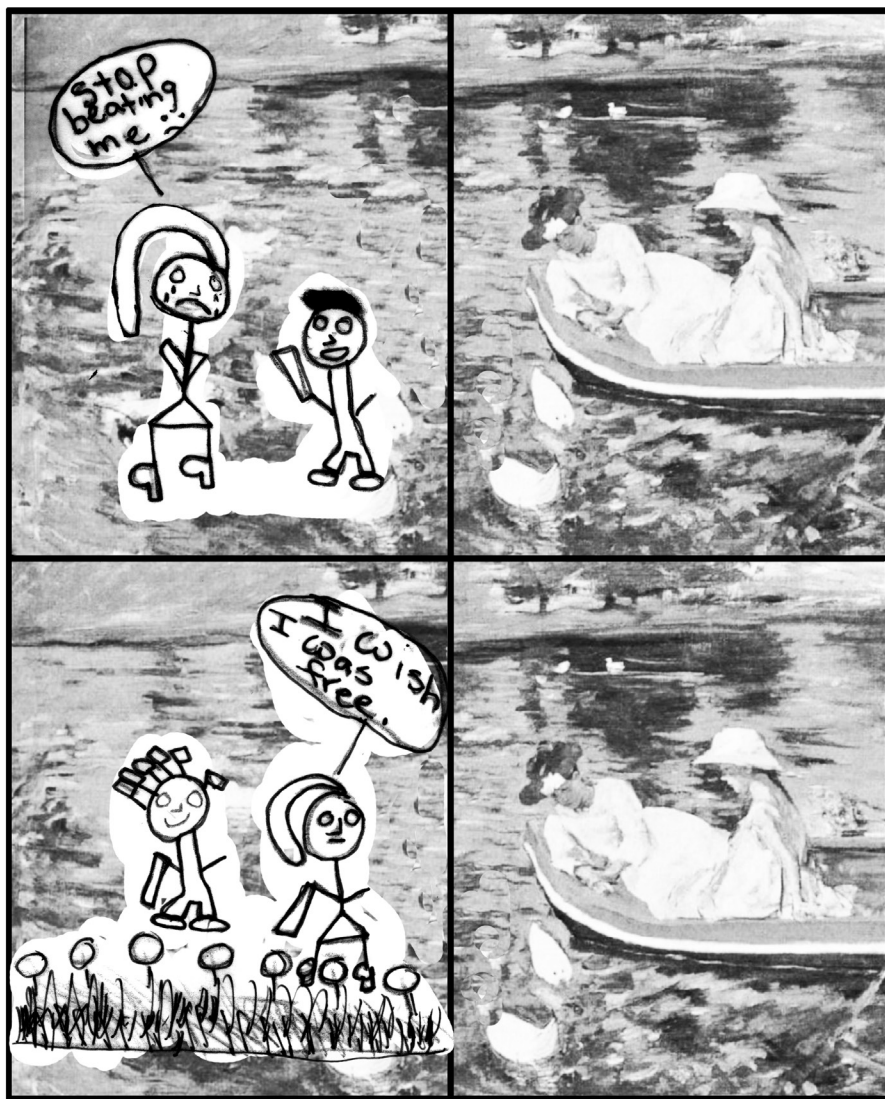

Deray McKesson is a leader in the Black Lives Matter movement. He led protests in Ferguson and Baltimore in response to police killings of unarmed black men.

We decided to go back in time to teach some lessons.

The future person will think that 2016 is strange
because it is a long,
long, long, and long time ago.

We are prepared for the future

I think the world would be completely different.
New cars will be floating on the roads. There might be new and better houses.
Fashion would be different too.
