

SNOWTIME WITH GUS!

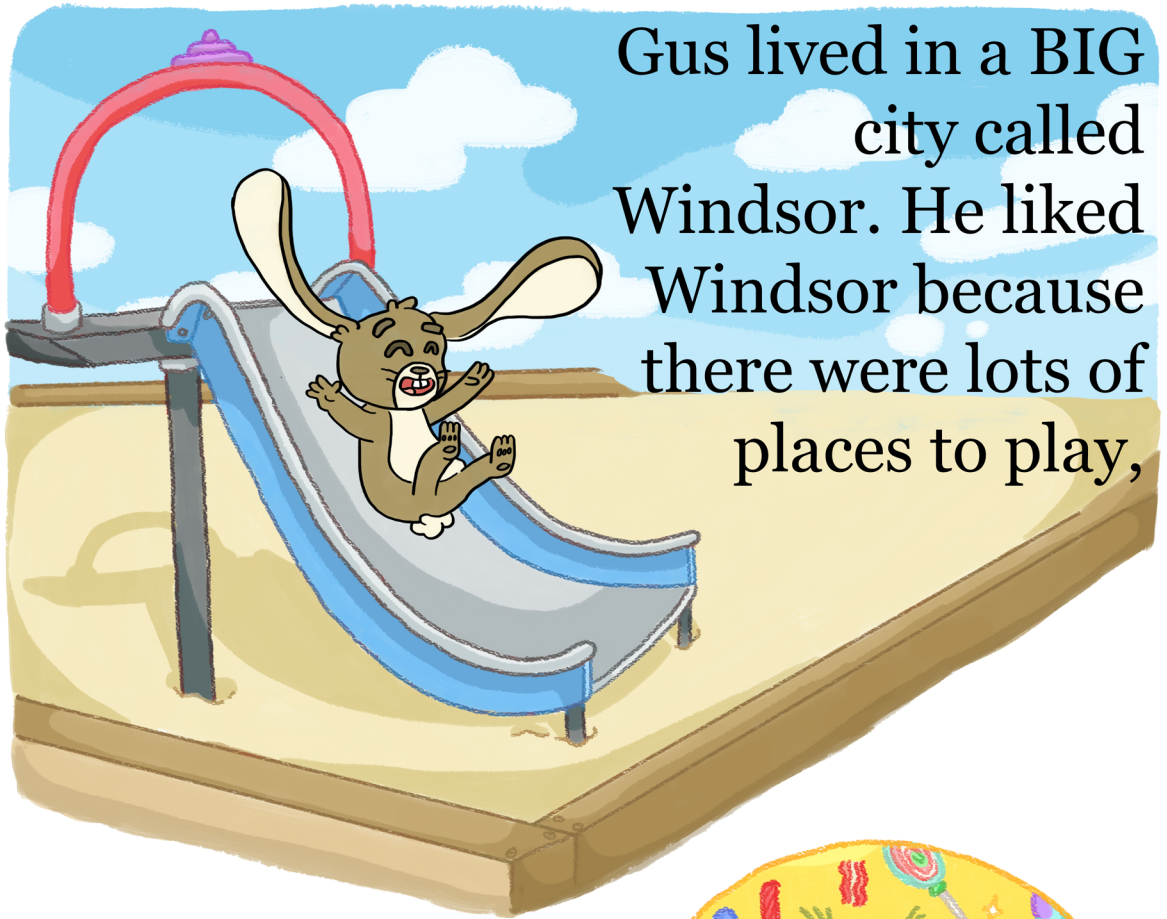

A Book By Uncle Troy

For Logan and Brooklyn and nobody else, unless Logan and Brook say they're allowed.

Every day, while the sun was up in the sky, a small brown rabbit named Gus sat and waited for snow.

Gus lived in a BIG city called Windsor. He liked Windsor because there were lots of places to play, and the green grass tasted sweet, just like candy.

Yep, Windsor was nice but it was HOT! And that meant there was hardly any snow in the wintertime.

Gus didn't even have enough snow to build a snowman; just a cheap little snow can.

And all of his snow angels turned out looking like
...well... just globs of snow.

“This DUMPS,” said Gus.

“I just wanna be somewhere like my friends Logan and Brooklyn where I can play in the snow ALL DAY!”

Then Gus had an idea: Logan and Brook live in Longlac, and there's HEAPS of snow in Longlac! Surely there would be enough for all three of them to play in the snow together.

So Gus packed up his sweet green grass, hopped on his skateboard, and set out on his adventure.

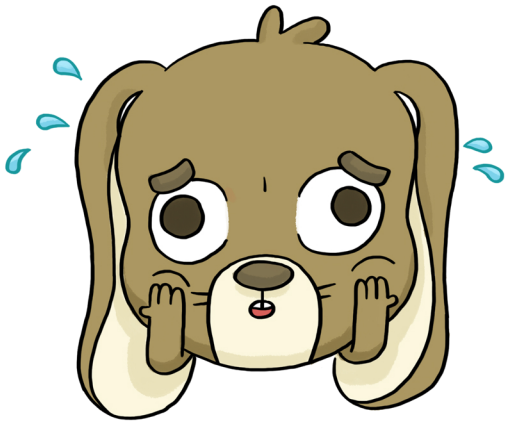

Gus rode his skateboard all the way down the street until he heard a voice shout, “HEY GUS! What’s up?”

It was his friend Betty. Gus told Betty how he'd skateboard to Longlac so he could play in the snow.

Betty laughed and said, “Hehehe! Skateboards are too slow! All the snow will melt by the time you get to Longlac!”

Oh no, Betty was right!
Winter would be over by then.

“How ‘bout you trade your skateboard for my cool red bike? Bikes are way faster than skateboards!”

So Gus traded Betty, hopped on the cool red bike, and continued his adventure.

He rode all the way down the street until he heard another voice shout, “HEY GUS! What’s up?”

This time it was his friend Rodney. Gus told Rodney all about Longlac, the snow, his old skateboard, and his new red bike.

Rodney laughed and said, “Hahaha! If you wanna get to Longlac before the snow melts, why don’t you trade that cool red bike for my big blue truck? Trucks are waaaaaay faster than bikes!”

So Gus traded Rodney, hopped in the big blue truck, and continued his adventure.

Gus drove halfway to Longlac before he heard the truck say “PUT PUT PUT!” and it stopped moving. It was all out of gas!

Gus walked down the street until he found a post office where he could sit and take a break.

When he walked inside,
Gus saw all kinds of mail
in boxes and envelopes, and he got the best idea ever!

Gus found an empty box, wrote down where he wanted to go, and hopped inside the box with his sweet green grass for a snack.

The mailman packed Gus up with the other boxes and envelopes, and drove his mail truck all the way to Longlac.

After a couple hours, when Gus had no more grass to eat, the mailman finally brought him to Logan and Brooklyn's house. He made it!

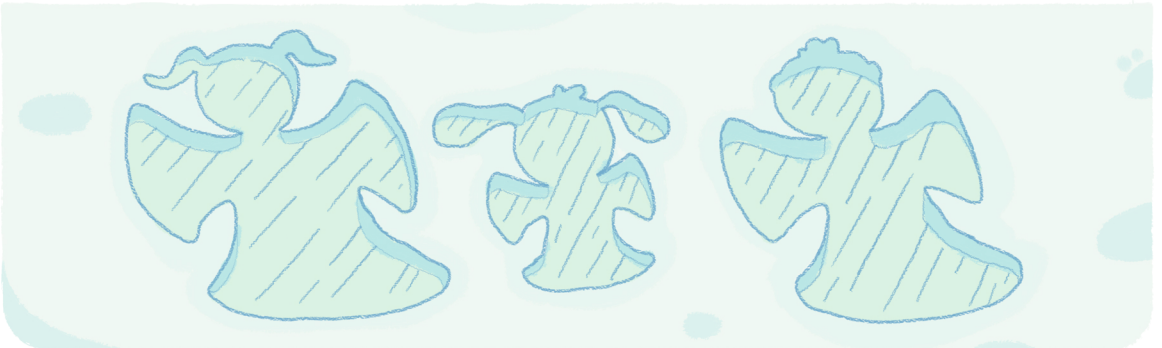

Gus hopped out of the box and played with Logan and Brooklyn in the snow all day long.

They made a snowman bigger than five snow cans.

And they made snow angels that looked like real angels instead of just globs!

They played in the heaps of snow until the sun went down and the moon came up into the sky. Then they went home, drank pink milk, ate cookies, snuggled into bed, and went to sleep.

END

Gus is a silly brown bunny from Windsor that loves to play. He'd really like to play in the snow this winter, but Windsor is just WAY TOO HOT! Can Gus make it to Longlac before winter is over?
