| Can Teach You About Photography

Vivian's work is best described as street photography, a style of shooting that documents people in candid situations, in public places. That sounds a bit drab, but it's actually anything but. Documenting your world gives an incredible look at the life and times of real people, right now. It's a subject that you are uniquely suited to. You know your world better than anyone else, show it to us!

The majority of Vivian's work is in black and white. This doesn't make it less interesting whatsoever. In fact, the lack of colour makes her images MORE interesting. In black and white, many critical elements of a photograph become more visible. The composition is front and center, and contrast, shapes, textures, lines, timing and expression are brought forward. With a strong eye for balance.

Really enjoyed this article. I'm a huge Vivian Maier fan. I am going to share this article with a local photography meetup group.

I start doing street photography about a year ago and now it turns out to be a passion. Then I heard about Vivian Maier story and I discovered her incredible work. She is my main inspiration. Hopefully I will see her work in an exhibition here in Montreal one day!
