ANDY SKOOG DODGES TAXES
ANDY SKOOG HAS EXTRA CASH THANKS TO HIS TAX SCAM
1. Andy Skoog has spent years inappropriately listing multiple properties for homestead exemptions to dodge taxes.[1]
2. Illinois residents can only claim a homestead exemption on ONE property – their "principle dwelling place."[1]
3. But Andy and his brother Troy have exempted up to $6,000 of their second property's value from taxation each year.[2]
Tax Con Artist Andy Skoog shouldn't get to vote on our tax rates

The DREAM Act
is a NIGHTMARE for taxpayers

» The DREAM Act uses our hard-earned tax dollars to fund costly education scholarships for illegal immigrants.

» New York taxpayers have enough to worry about — enhancing assistance for people here illegally should NOT be a top priority.

Don t let the Dream Act TRAP New York

ANDY SKOOG IS HAVING A TOUGH TIME EXPLAINING HIS TAX SCAM

- ✕ Illinois law states homestead exemptions can only apply to their "principle dwelling place"[1]
- ✕ Skoog listed multiple properties for homestead exemptions, including his sports bar, for years[2]
- ✕ Andy Skoog and his brother exempted an extra $3,500-$6,000 per year from taxes[2]

WE CANNOT ALLOW THIS CROOK TO CONTINUE SETTING OUR OWN TAX RATES

Yingling said he donated a taxpayer-funded pay raise back to Avon Township
But he actually gave the tax dollars to a foundation where he was treasurer
Yingling's foundation then lost tax-exempt status for not reporting spending
He left taxpayers clueless about where their hard-earned dollars really went

Sam Yingling Cronyism Edition

Corruption FOR DUMMIES

About the Author:

- Sam Yingling was criticized for cronyism after he appointed an unqualified political ally as Avon Township's Highway Commissioner even though he lost the election a year earlier.[1]
- Avon Township spent $450,000 of taxpayer money to settle a case after Yingling was accused of firing employees for their political opinions.[2]
- Yingling told voters he donated his taxpayer-funded pay raise back to Avon Township, but instead he gave the money to his own foundation, which lost tax exempt status for failing to report where the money was spent.[3]

Say NO to Yingling's corruption this November
