Does the Law of Attraction Really Work?

The Law of Attraction works based on the belief that positive thinking will ensure positive reactions and get you where you want to be. If you want to lose weight or find a fortune, you need to want this.

If you want it badly enough, and you believe that it is truly possible, and perhaps more importantly you are consistent with your beliefs and actions, then you will get more of what you want.

Though it is easy to want something really badly, sometimes your subconscious emotions that you have developed over time will interfere with the positive outward thinking and you will not put yourself out there 100%.

That's why you need to be consistent over time, because the more consistent that you are, the more likely you are to get your subconscious emotions to start working with you and helping you toward your goals rather than hindering you.

Many people have negative experiences with the Law of Attraction, complaining that it never works for them. This could be for a variety of reasons:

- They don't fully believe it will work
- They have mixed feelings
- They don't put themselves in the position to receive what they want
- They don't believe in the positivity of the universe
- They don't take the time to bother

With people that have great experiences with the Law of Attraction, they really believe that it is life changing and great. For them, they have followed the steps and the specifics:

- Believe that the universe can help you
- Believe in miracles
- Go out and actually find ways to help you get what you want
- Be sure and whole-hearted on what you want
- Put the time into making it work

Think about how many people have actually tried the Law of Attraction to bring them fortune or something. How many do you think persevered and followed through until they got what they wanted? Probably not many. It could take a life time to capture the proper feelings needed for the Law of Attraction to work and harnessing this early is hard.

Honestly, if the Law of Attraction hasn't worked for you, it may not be right for you because you may not be motivated enough to go through with it. The people who have successful chances with the Law of Attraction persevere for years because that's just how it works. You must set it up for yourself, believe in the universe's helping hand, and make your life better. It's all up to you.

What are the Specifics I Should Know About the Law of Attraction

The Law of Attraction states that you should be very specific while asking the “universe” for what you want to zone in down on one thing. While specifics are necessary, they are not the whole thing. There are many things about the Law of Attraction that you should make sure you know if you are going to attempt to live your life by these standards.

Though controversial, it is important to believe that the universe is ready to do good for you and you need to trust it in order to get what you want.

Trusting the universe is important because if you do not feel completely positive about it, the negativity will bring you down and edge your belief and possibly fail the Law of Attraction.

You really do have to believe in what you want without a shade of doubt, and be consistent with your belief over a long period of time – as long as needed.

Another specific thing to remember about the Law of Attraction is that while you must believe the universe will help you, that’s all it will do: help you. You need to do some of the work too. For example, some people may complain that the Law of Attraction did not help them gain the attention of certain people, but meanwhile, they were sitting alone in the room all day and not putting themselves in the situation for the universe to help them. They neglected to follow through with the attraction.

Finally, remember to stay positive through it all. Having negative thoughts or obsessions will only disturb the power of the universe becoming in your favor. Staying positive will allow more opportunities and people to present themselves, and in turn, reveal your needs. Make sure you speak positive words and think positive thoughts and just push away the negative.

Although the Law of Attraction is theorized to work for anyone for any purpose, it does not always work that way. Many of the people who rely on the Law of Attraction have had successful results, but if you have had failed attempts, think back to when you were partaking in the law, and try to figure out the issue, and definitely try again. Were you wishing for something that was negative or were you being negative? These are common reasons why you may have failed in your attempt. Remember these little things while thinking about the Law of Attraction in order to find success.

Make the Most of the Law of Attraction

The law of attraction is at work all the time, in the life of everyone in the world. When you understand the theory and how it works, you will be able to harness its true power. When that happens, you can make the most of it and see real changes in your life.

In order to make the most of the law of attraction you need to understand the concept fully. You can do a lot of research online. However, most online sources provide limited information. These sites are typically designed to sell something, a book or a seminar for example.

This is not necessarily a bad thing. When you read books on the subject you are likely to get more of an understanding of the law of attraction. If you read more than one book you will get different expert points of view on the subject.

Attending seminars can also help you fully harness the power of the law of attraction. Seminars and workshops not only teach you what the law of attraction is and how it works, but what steps to take to make the most of it. You will learn tools and tricks that will help you manifest your dreams in reality.

You can learn some of these tools from online sources, eBooks and podcasts. Some of these you may be able to find for free. Others you will have to pay for, but it can definitely be worth it, especially for the programs that have a lot of good testimonials and proof backing up their claims. It really depends on your level of commitment and your financial resources. The more you put into your self-improvement the better prepared you are to take advantage of the law of attraction.

Once you learn a lot about this school of thought you will need to take steps to put what you learned into practical use. Make vision boards, make a five year plan, change your outlook on life, attend some additional seminars and workshops to improve your attitude and self-confidence, and do whatever else it might take to put you in prime position to attract everything you ever wanted into your life.

The most unattainable desires can become tangible truths when you make the most of the law of attraction. It's about making a commitment to learn all you can and put it to work for you. It can take time and effort, but in the end you will have everything you ever dreamed of.

Reading Material for the Law of Attraction

First things first, the Law of Attraction describes a pretty simple idea: thinking of positive things makes positive things more likely to happen, and thinking of negative things makes negative things more likely to happen. Okay, so while you can't exactly willpower good things to happen to you, there is scientific evidence that points towards positive thoughts doing positive things to you. Before we get into that though, we should get into the core idea behind the Law of Attraction.

The Law of Attraction originates as a concept in "New Thought", a spiritual movement that was born in the US in the 19th century. While too large to fit the whole movement in a paragraph, it centers on the idea that an infinite intelligence (God, essentially) is contained in everything, and that positive thoughts will manifest themselves into positivity around your environment, and vice versa with negative thoughts. To believers of New Thought, ALL diseases originate as a result of negativity in the mind. As a result, they also believe that positive thinking can heal any kind of disease, from mental illnesses to cancer.

Obviously most of this stuff isn't the case. Most physical diseases originate from some kind of pathogen, and positive thinking does nothing against pathogens. There is some semblance of truth in this ideology, however: positive thoughts will have unconscious changes to your mood and actions throughout the day. If you're in a positive mood, you're more likely to be patient, do nice things for people, be more tolerant of unfortunate situations, all of which will contribute to a higher likelihood of good things happening to you. The opposite is true, too; if you're negative to people, or intolerant, it might cause people to become unconsciously more hostile towards you, increasing the likelihood of your day being bad.

What does this have to do with dating? When you're trying to meet people for the first time, your first appearance is very important. While physical appearances are important, personality plays an arguably higher role in determining whether someone will find you date-worthy. Think of it like this: if you come off to a man (or woman) as someone who is laidback, easy going, positive, your potential partners will be able to get a sense of that, and they'll become more attracted to you. This can be dangerous, though, because if you provide the opposite sense (someone who seems to be impatient, unsociable, etc.), you might attract people who thrive off of that kind of negativity, which obviously doesn't sound like a good partner.

To conclude things, in the context of dating, the Law of Attraction can be really useful in the image you present to potential partners, with good images attracting good people, and negative images attracting negative people. Though the origins of the law of attraction are a bit questionable, the law is pretty useful when applied to dating people.

Gratitude And The Law Of Attraction

Positivity is something that can be given without expecting anything in return. When a person works for a place or company, yes, the main reason they try to remain positive, especially in front of customers or clients, is because they would lose their jobs if they did not. However, there are people that see the joy in another's eyes and they get even greater joy from knowing that they have positively help that person out.

Gratitude is a feeling that comes from the heart. From the look on a person's face to the tone that reacts to receiving what they have obtained, that all can be measured into the gratitude that they are expressing. If it is something that you want to give, it is something that should be genuine, not something that is forced. When you force the reaction of gratitude, not only will you look fake, but you will lose respect from the everyone around you.

How ever you choose to display your gratitude, or lack thereof, the Laws of Attraction will play its hand into your game. Not only will you be in the loop that will give you what you give, but you will also feel the kind of disregard that you may be showing.

Showing a great deal of gratitude can be simply shown by following one rule: be humble. Humility can take you places that you have never imagined that you could go to. The thing with humility, like gratitude, you have to be honest about it. Lower your standards and show that world your appreciation for the things you have and live happy. Be the one that sets the example.

With the Laws of Attraction applying to this kind of mannerism with so much significance, your recompense will be greater than you expect. When you give your heart into a job that you are looking to make great, not perfect, you will get the recognition that you work for. When you show the right amount of respect towards the people that work with you, never for you, then you will know that the team you are with will become family. They will show their gratitude from your example.

Gratitude is great. Gratitude is what you can show for a job well done. It can be the difference between you wanting to move forward and motivate you to be better, do more for yourself, and do more for others.

Instead of getting down on herself, she believed that the law of attraction would bring her the success she sought. She clung to that belief, worked hard, and waited for the opportunities to arise.

When they did, she seized them, working hard to become successful while believing that this hard work would and faith would attract the success she sought. Within six months she was in the best job at the best company she could have hoped for.

Art

Vincent wanted nothing more than to be a successful artist. He was talented, but he knew that many talented artists never made it. He worked at fast food joints and other odd jobs thinking that he had no other talents or skills to offer anyone.

At last, he heard about the law of attraction. He decided to give it a try. He took up his art again in his spare time. He sold art pieces at swap meets and flea markets. He tried to believe that he would become successful, even though he didn't feel successful. He put his intent out into the universe, and eventually the universe answered.

An art dealer found his art at one of the markets, and offered him his own show in his gallery. From that point on Vincent believed in the law of attraction and its ability to change your life.
