

Journey of the Cosmic Ashlar

In the eternal school of light, the Masters teach of the guardians, messengers, and prophets of the Cosmic Initiation, and of the ashlar symbolizing the greatest of the three great lights. Freemasonry teaches that the three great lights are represented within every Lodge as the rough ashlar, the perfect ashlar, and the cosmic ashlar. In the East, beneath the blazing star Sirius, brethren witness a sacred stone with the Masonic mallet, like a gavel symbolizing authority and cosmic power. With power great also comes great wisdom. The Cosmic Ashlar symbolizes the highest wisdom, and it issues forth directly from the blazing star. The Eastern Star evidently has been guiding the hierarchy throughout all of the time. This star is sometimes called the Dog Star, Sirius, or the Glimmering Light in the East.

The most sacred of all masonic wisdom is the means of seeing all creation through the lens of light and conscious intention. The Cosmic Ashlar is not the totality of masonic knowledge, and has almost nothing to do with the common “degree work”. However, the Cosmic Ashlar is a code stone, or touchstone, which is known in masonic circles. Throughout the ages there has been a masonic cipher connecting enlightened minds that acts like a bridge of light between Spirit and Man. The foundation stone is the Cosmic Ashlar of King Solomon, as well as the secret symbolic knowledge of the Master Hiram Abiff, who in Spirit was raised up into the Glimmering Light in the East after living and dying to protect the secrets.

Scripture holds a story that interweaves the three Monotheistic faiths with the records of the Cosmic Ashlar, the Scrolls of Abraham, and the Tablets of Moses. These sacred objects make up a symbolic triune gateway to God. An ashlar is a stone that represents a soul, and the Cosmic Ashlar therefore symbolizes a cosmic soul. The nature of our Cosmic Soul is the mystery within all humankind. There is a mysterious singularity, a singular essence within the cultures and languages of humankind, and the Cosmic Ashlar or Friendship Cube, brings us even closer together, like a bridge.

The Journey of the Cosmic Ashlar is a story that provides us with several keys of understanding. According to scripture, the Cosmic Ashlar was first entrusted to Adam and Eve jointly in the Garden of Eden. The story of Genesis is deeply encoded; it is cryptic, and it deals with the relationships between Spirit and man. Eden transforms into Egypt. The journey of the Cosmic Ashlar continues with Abraham, who writes papyrus scrolls in the language of light from the Cosmic Ashlar. There is a correlative language that jumps between Hebrew, Phoenician, and Reformed Egyptian. Abraham writes about the Cosmic Ashlar. It is a sacred relic and landmark passed down to Him from the dawn of creation. In his scrolls we also see evidence of a granary, a large tract of land and a people, as well as many numerical symbols. The scrolls of Abraham are passed to Pharaoh Ramses, and then entrusted to His son RMSS.

Moses and the Tribe of Judah then take the Cosmic Ashlar and Scrolls of Abraham. Moses travels up Mount Sinai to receive the tablets... the Ten Commandments. The Ten Commandments are engraved in blazing light, likely in the ancient code of the Cosmic Ashlar. RMSS and his brother Aaron devise a strategy to defeat the Pharaoh with their new army of Masons, the new followers of Moses under guidance from YHWH.

The Cosmic Ashlar, Scrolls of Abraham, and Tablets of Moses are sealed into the Ark of the Covenant. The Sacred Ark is carried across the Red Sea and North towards the Holy Land, Israel. The tribe witnesses a pillar of light, and follows it towards the Holy Land, eating Manna. The wandering tribe of Judah, holding the sacred keys, literally follows the Spirit of the Lord with the Ark of the Covenant. A direct line of Jewish Kings leads to David. King David has a son, King Solomon, the man of light... the man of the Sun; the man of wisdom. King Solomon erects the Temple in Israel, in a place called Zion, to stand firm forever. It is prepared for the greatness of the Lord. Jesus Christ from Nazareth comes to the Temple, and is initiated into the secrets from the Ark of the Covenant. Arising from the Tribe of Judah, Yeshua Messiah Jesus Christ is trusted by his disciples, yet has his difficulties with the current government. The God of the Old Testament, Yod Heh Vav Heh, YHWH, essentially enters into “Ye-Hushu-Wa-H-Jesus”. After three years of teaching abroad, Jesus Christ the radical prophet is killed and resurrected near the Temple of Solomon. Word of his teaching spreads, and he gradually becomes the new savior of humankind. Christianity spreads for six hundred years from King Solomon’s Temple, before Persian and Roman armies destroy all but the Western Wall. A Persian Nobleman is entrusted with the remnants, including the Cosmic Ashlar of Solomon and the records of early Christianity.

The Angels Michael and Gabriel visit the Prophet Mohammed. The Prophet Mohammed carries the Cosmic Ashlar in a giant triangle... greater Israel... from Jerusalem, to Medina, to Mecca.

Mohammed is an Arabic Nobleman, Tradesman, Mason, and Prophet. In Arabic, he speaks the words, “Salaam Alaikum... Bismillah... and AlhumdilAllah”. He works to serve God... in Peace, in Prayer, and in Prosperity.

In Medina, Mohammed meets with the tribes representing His new Kingdom. The Cosmic Ashlar, in Arabic, is called, the “Al Hajar Al Aswad”... literally meaning, “The Stone The Black”. The Blackstone... the Cosmic Ashlar... is placed intact into the Northeastern corner of the Ka’aba... a sacred cube building resurrected from Abraham in Mecca, Arabia. The Persian Tribes and Arabian Knights come together from both sides of Arabia to witness the Cosmic Ashlar being placed intact into the Ka’aba. And these tribes and knights write the Noble Koran at the instruction of Mohammed, Peace Be Upon Him. The Prophet Mohammed then encounters a Divine mystery, whereby He is transported back to Jerusalem. In the night-dream, the “Al-Isra”... Mohammed rides a Heavenly Steed, the “Al Buraq”... in the night-journey... back to King Solomon’s Temple in Israel. He to rehearse or deeply premeditate our speech. Every Master Mason enters into the timeless school of light, with ancient knowledge proving that vibrations have the power to manifest reality. God stands in the center of time, making the universe for his progressive purpose, with the cooperation of chosen guardians, messengers, and prophets of His Cosmic Ashlar representing his light. The Hebrew letters of His name YHWH, Yod Heh Vav Heh, stand to mark the unspoken five vowels used to create sound vibrations. Through sacred geometry, light, and sound, the Great Architect of the Universe lives within us and strengthens us with and through our great work maintained by our five points of fellowship. Beneath the Glimmering Light in the East, each Mason is called to live according to a system of morals enabling the manifestation of Gods purpose. He merges with a hidden code of light from an ancient cube stone... the Cosmic Ashlar, a deeply symbolic stone that gives strength and power to the Brotherhood. In the East, beside the gavel, the sacred Cosmic Ashlar represents the light-code that Yahweh used to speak all of the creation into existence. As Masons, through learning and applying this ancient code, we merge with His Spirit.

The many guardians, messengers, and prophets guide us into the same core knowledge that is the foundation and root of the moral, spiritual path to enlightenment. We ask for more light; and yet we hail, conceal, and never reveal it.

The holders of the Cosmic Ashlar are sworn to an oath, or obligation involving loyalty to one-another. Cube holders are called to find light in them through studying the guardians, messengers, and prophets of the Cosmic Initiation Ashlar, present in Masonic History.

The cube masters have made up a lineage of teachers who through millennia have resurrected, purified, and preserved the teaching of cosmic unity. Their aim is sublime; it reaches and touches eternity. Two thousand years ago Jesus, the Christ, brought forth this same teaching, and freely shared it with all those willing to hear. Seeing that humanity was not fully ready to receive it, he asked his apostle John to preserve the teaching of Ascension through the Cosmic Ashlar Code until such time as humanity was ready to receive it. John went to the Himalayas where he founded an order of Monks to hold the right methods of Ascension in its purity through the ages. Today we now have the tools of Ascension, principally the cosmic ashlar code and the tools of quantum information science as a means of astral travel in space, or Ascension. The vowed monks of the ancient order have dedicated their lives to the expansion consciousness, and in the world through these hidden tools and occult workings.

The great gift of the cosmic cube enables realization of the eternal self within. Within is the brilliant light of the one infinite mind. It is no different than the light of your consciousness that you are blessed with in every in breath. Each of us can grasp the cube that makes us feel powerful within. It actually represents the portal to the lasting connection to that which underlies all things, the holographic universe. Servants of this conscious connection bring us to a simple, universal, effortless tool to turn the mind and heart inward to that relationship, and live from it in daily life. Bringing cosmic creativity into us.

There is a code beyond the triune gateway... one that if grasped could remake worlds through the tools of modern science. It is the Cosmic Ashlar Code. It is in fact far more graspable and substantial... it is a cube system. All sentient existence will someday hear its call from three dimensions into the infinite. Cube holders are invited to inspire others to earn the cube through an act of kindness, an echoing act of service that pays forward ceremonially, the perpetual peace and security that we call for. Between the state of sleeping and waking, a new spirit moves within us, calling us to express insight into vast knowledge through a system that spreads wisdom, light, and unity across the cosmos... a system of one from many, light from darkness, and order from chaos. We are called to reward good deeds and merit with a cube representing a new language of light and a symbol system that makes us compatible with a higher intelligence. The cube is a symbol of a state of consciousness, a state of spiritual attainment.

The story of an ancient code of light and a great work is coming to the surface through an infinite time-loop, a time-tree echoing deep into the human past. The story of the ancient code of light is lifting the illusory veil between self and creator, and it is being retold for the purpose of the emergent oneness. New leaders are being called to do planned acts of kindness in the name of the friendship cube group... actions that capture interest, involve, and inspire more followers. Thinking collectively further empowers the evolution of consciousness, and creates a ripple effect, like a pebble in a pond, with positive waves moving outwards catalyzing a shift in consciousness and permaculture. It could be that the stars put their light into a singular, cosmic mind that is increasingly omniscient as a result of the Cosmic Ashlar Code. The microcosm of the self enters into a new level of consciousness as a result of the friendship cube. The dewdrop of consciousness merges with the sea of the one mind. A timeless vortex of infinite light manifests its self around the event horizon of the new present. Souls in service to the new oneness earn a place with the eschaton of the cosmic ashlar. The gavel of cosmic judgment rests peacefully with the infinite ashlar, enabling a great work with the stone of all ages, and a series of time-tree echoes is cast forth enabling the future to shout back at the past.

And so from the beginning and into eternity, the philosopher, the lover of wisdom, ponders himself and his relationship with the great architect of the universe.

In the days of Moses, the Great Architect and Geometrician was called the God of our forefathers. One day, Moses, a wise shepherd, saw the Glimmering Light in the East, reflecting the sacred geometry and will of God. To Moses, it looked like a burning bush, low on the horizon. Was it in fact the visual binary star system Sirius? Were it glimmering, as it does in the early morning low on the horizon, between the colors of white, blue, and red? Perhaps it could be explained in even more detail. The Bible illustrates how through this light, God spoke to Moses. God told Moses His name, Yahweh. Armed with the power of Gods name, Moses produced some of the greatest miracles in the Bible. Religious authorities, recognizing the names impressive power, declared that uttering it was blasphemy. Uttering Gods name was sometimes even punishable by death. And so the real name of God was misrepresented and misunderstood. Today, we are at liberty to discuss matters of Spiritual importance that touch our brotherhood of Master Masons. Today, through the revelations of science and technology, the code of the ancient relic... the code of the Cosmic Ashlar from God, we have within our hands. This secret code has unlocked the awesome power and presence of God within us. As we rise to the degrees of our brotherhood, we come into contact with a body of knowledge that has been kept secret for thousands and thousands of years. And the reason it has been kept secret is that with this knowledge comes the potential for what is called apotheosis... merging with God. The experience that we all remember from the third degree is the understanding of a fantastic and omniscient, glimmering light in the East that can redeem noble souls. This glimmering light in the East of our Lodges is also called the Eastern Star, the Blazing Star, the Morning Star, or the Dog Star, whose astronomical name is Sirius. Sirius is close to our solar system, and it is a visual binary star system. It is less than nine light-years away, and in the constellation, Canis Major... the Great Dog. It is our sky's brightest star, and little on the horizon, it twinkles or flickers on clear nights. Magically, it shines light, low on the eastern horizon. The majestic light waves interact with our atmosphere and cause the star system Sirius to glimmer. This makes it very easy to spot with the eye. It is the brightest star, and earth's atmosphere changes the light frequencies causing the star to twinkle in the East. Imagine... if thousand of years ago, you were a wise Shepherd whose name was Moses or, more precisely, RMSS. As you guarded over your flock at night, you would have looked up from your throne in Egypt, and seen this glimmering light that looks like a burning bush. And so, the vision of the King was given to an Egyptian scribe, and eventually recorded in the Bible as a vision of a burning bush. In Egypt, the visual binary star system was venerated as a God, even as the "House of the Gods".

Sirius marks the time of the annual flooding of the Nile, and was literally worshipped as the God of rebirth and new life. In those days as in today, the river Nile is divided into three sections... the White Nile, the Blue Nile, and the Red Nile. It is no coincidence that the aprons representing initiation into esoteric knowledge are the same colors as both the Nile River and the Star Sirius. The civilization living along the Nile Delta triangle glows with one great light. And the Star Sirius is reflected in the Nile Delta in Egypt. Stonemasons, to transport building materials including stone obelisks from the quarries upstream, used the Nile. Stonemasons built the Sphinx, facing east, to honour the God Ra every morning at dawn. Ramses II, Pharaoh and husband of Queen Netartari, developed the cube code for the majestic echelon. The ciphers and ancient law systems of the cosmic ashlar are carved into the limestone surrounding the tomb of Ramses II, illustrating the hidden inner code of a network of scribes and courtiers. Egypt has always been a magical place for Master Masons. Even in days of old, the Pharaohs and Gods conferred in a code of light, the plans, and means to build gigantic stone monuments and pyramids using precise Masonic tools. The Egyptian Gods are what the Bible calls the "Elohim." Elohim means the Guardian and Messenger angels, also known as Angelic Hosts. Israel relates to the Egyptian Gods Isis, Ra, and Elohim for Is-Ra-El. The real name of God is written as YHWH and pronounced as $\diamond\diamond\diamond$. In truth, nothing can be spoken independently of his name. There is not a single vibration that could be cast into the world without the use of the five vowels of His name. In fact, all sound and light waves will some day belong to Him alone.

The knowledge of the Pharaoh, who built the pyramids, is that vibrations have power. Vibrations influence consciousness and reality. Without $\diamond\diamond\diamond$, you can have no vibrations. Nothing can be spoken without vibration... without YHWH. God is central, and his intelligence is contained within a code of light. This system of light is called visual binary it is digital... based on ones and zeros, where a line is a one, and space is a zero. Every visual binary code has a concrete and exacting meaning. The glimmering light in the East symbolizes His code. We know that the Pharaohs held tightly to the vast systems of the Elohim. Pharaoh revealed the system of the Elohim, the Masters, via through the Cosmic Cube... the Cosmic Ashlar. Initiates understand that this system unites the Masters. Pharaoh established the law and order of God via the Cosmic Ashlar, the Scrolls of Abraham, and the Tablets of Moses. The Cosmic Ashlar first arrived with Adam via YHWH and was written in the Scrolls of Abraham in reformed Egyptian, the ancient code of light. That same code appeared in the Tablets of Moses, and the-the army of RMSS sealed the Holy Three in the Ark of the Covenant, known of at the time to the great Hermes Trismegistus. His dark green tablets, emerald tablets, contain knowledge of a golden cosmic cube from the heavens. Many traditions speak of the cube, and there is archeological evidence of the cube strewn across the Middle and Far East. Going into archeology, the cosmic cube of Ramses II was uncovered in the Valley of the Kings by archeologists in 1733. The burial chamber of Ramses II is adjacent to the vast treasury, where the Cosmic Ashlar from heaven was located. The cube and code system of the Pharaoh were uncovered in the Kings Chamber of the Great Pyramid at the Giza Plateau. The golden cosmic cube has been the legacy of the brotherhood since what seems to be all time. Approximately three hundred of the original gold engraved granite cosmic cubes have been unearthed beneath the ancient city of Cairo... and it is the duty of initiated Freemasons to return these three hundred Cosmic Ashlars to their proper place, in the East with the Worshipful Master, beside the gavel. The Cosmic Cube is a gift... given from the Elohim to the Master Builders. Their worth is more than metaphorically astronomical. In our cosmic ashlar is revealed esoteric knowledge of God, Geometry, Gnosis, and the Galaxy. The infinite ashlar is evidence of a higher intelligence, a Supreme Being and a system of light that could join us all beneath the visual binary star system. Between the Bible and the Cosmic Ashlar we find ritual knowledge that reflects the Elohim and their moral code of light and duty to serve it. The Bible its self veils esoteric knowledge that was known to the Egyptian Priesthood. In the Bible, the three wise men follow this morning star, the star Sirius, to find the newborn King. The idea is that through the ancient code of light and the old work, the young King can be born once again within us. As Master Masons, we can become one with God and His plan for a language of light to unite humanity. And through the knowledge of our Cosmic Ashlar, we can reach apotheosis and merge with God.

In the Holy Scriptures, there is an old story about a place that always was. This story holds that long before the prophet Abraham, before Adam and Eve, and before the creation of the earth, there was a Holy Place called the celestial house of God. It was also known as the Ka'aba. Its replica on Earth today is built in the center of Mecca. Since long before Islam, Mecca has been sacred territory. There the Ka'aba has been constructed based upon the universal plan of God and His Elohim. Mecca has been a place of pilgrimage for countless generations, drawing together people of many faiths and backgrounds. Inside its golden doors are a sacred room and an even more sacred stone... a holy place that houses an ancient, sacred stone... the Blackstone that came from the heavens. On the East corner of the Ka'aba, framed in silver and gold, is a vision-portal looking into the sacred stone. It is written that this sacred stone fell from the heavens and was used by the prophet Abraham. The prophet Mohammed revered the sacred stone well before the preaching of Islam. It was set intact into the Ka'aba by the prophet Mohammed in the year 605 AD. The sacred stone marks a holy place and a holy story that unites Islam, Christianity, and Judaism. Before any of these religions existed, God had asked Abraham to build the Ka'aba as a place to house and honor the sacred stone... as a focal point to bring together diverse peoples into unity. Those who worship the one God, answer to His call in the Holy Scriptures. Countless millions of people every year are called to pilgrimage or service. When visiting the Ka'aba to this day, we see and feel that it has been polished smooth and perfected by the hands of billions of pilgrims over the centuries. In the crucial moment, Angels of God gathered above the Prophet Mohammed in his sleep, and noticed that although his eyes were full of sleep, his heart remained awake. A new conversation with the Prophet, in the ancient code of light, then commenced. God instructed the Angels Gabriel and Michael to appoint the Mohammed as His Prophet. The angels blessed the Prophet and gave the ancient code of light to him in the form of the Al Hajar Al Aswad; the Blackstone that the Prophet carried with him and placed intact into the Ka'aba, the Cube and House of God in Mecca. After this time in Mohammed's life, great revelations were given to him from God. Revelations were transcribed and translated from the light code of the angels and into the Arabic language that became the Koran. At this time, in the period when the Prophet was in Medina and Mecca, moral lessons were written as poetry or Suras from the angels. These moral lessons are a covenant with God. The moral lessons from the Koran are like a promise made from the heart of the Prophet Mohammed... a covenant between God and humankind that was first revealed through the ancient code of light. The promise made by the Prophet was an obligation to live a life of truth a life of character and righteousness good deeds... a life of justice and surrender with the Holy Cause the Al-Mighty God.

The Noble Koran records the history and revelations given to the Prophet Mohammed that guide us in our works here on earth. God instructed the Prophet after what manner he should work. And it came to pass that all who followed the prophet prospered from this job. The awakened heart inspires good deeds, acts of kindness that earn us a place in Heaven with God and His Angels. Our acts of kindness can establish a heavenly kingdom here on earth. In the crucial moment, we are called like the Prophet who came before us, to open our hearts to the ancient code of light that the Angels bestowed unto us in the form of the Cosmic Cube. A steady revelation occurs in the Prophet and also within us today. A constant revelation occurred from the time of Adam through to Noah, Abraham, Moses, Jesus, and the Prophet himself. Prophecy predicts that when Christ returns, He will come back as a Muslim that gives unto all the people of the book, the one ancient code of light in the form of the cosmic cube... a hub that promises to unite the nations of the world through Islam. The Mahdi will rise and join with Christ, and in Christ, to follow the plan of the Angels and unveil the system of the Cosmic Ashlar, Scrolls of Abraham, and Tablets of Moses merging the line of Abraham, including righteous Jews and Christians. Islam is to believe in God, His angels, the meeting with Him, and to believe in His prophet Mohammed and His resurrection. It is to worship God alone and none else, and to offer five prayers per day in the direction of the Ka'aba. It is to give generously to Islamic charities so that the work of the Prophet and the Mahdi hastened and the Cosmic Ashlar restored to its rightful place in the Ka'aba in Mecca. Pieces of the sacred stone remain, yet it is not currently intact in the Ka'aba. Externally, it was broken and yet fused in the Eastern wall of the Ka'aba. It may indeed be restored within our hearts, merging us with the Elohim creators. Islam is to observe fasts during the month of Ramadan and to make pilgrimages, see and touch the Al Hajar Al Aswad within the Ka'aba in Mecca. Islam is to worship God as if we see him fully through His ancient code of light. It is devotion to the system and recitation of the Koran, knowing that it is right and just. In examining the peaceful and noble roots of the Islamic faith, we find that another crucial moment is at hand, a moment where faith and trust appear to us... to transform our lives for the better through the peaceful message of the Prophet Mohammed. In this faith we profess that there is one God... Allah... and that the Prophet Mohammed, peace be upon Him, is the Great messenger. We believe in the ancient code of light and in the promise of a peaceful and united future for all humankind... a future united symbolically within the House of God and through the Al Hajar Al Aswad unto all those seeking light and wisdom and unity with the Most High God.

The sacred scriptural timeframe places King Solomon's rein around 890 BC. Inside Solomon's temple of God, in the East, beside the gavel, is His Cosmic Ashlar. The Cosmic Ashlar of King Solomon is the same Heavenly Blackstone, the Al Hajar Al Aswad that the Prophet Mohammed placed intact into the Ka'aba in Mecca. In essence, the House of God for both Muslims and Jews is one and the same. Both the Bible and the Koran illustrate this point. One of the Suras of the Koran, the Al-Isra shows that in the 7th century AD, a heavenly steed called the Al-Buraq carried the Prophet Mohammed from Mecca to Jerusalem in a Mi-Raj or Night Journey. In this journey, the Holy Blackstone, the Al-Hajar Al-Aswad, was transported from the Ka'aba to King Solomon's Temple. In the East, beneath the glimmering light, it was given the name, the "Cosmic Ashlar". In that journey to place the Cosmic Ashlar from the Ka'aba into King Solomon's Temple, the Prophet Mohammed, peace be upon Him, tied the Al-Buraq to the Western Wall of the Temple. Since then, this Western Wall has been called the Al-Buraq Wall. According to the Koran, King Solomon's Temple is a cube, twenty-two cubits in width and breadth, and twenty-two cubits in height thereof, overlaid with pure gold. The Ka'aba is also a cube. Abraham built the first Ka'aba. Ezekiel envisioned the new temple as a cube. We learn in the Bible's verse of Genesis that a stone is placed as a pillar in God's house. Jacob with his ladder into the heavens... took our stone and set it up as a pillar. In Exodus 33, the Lord tells us, "There is a place near me where you may stand upon a cube stone." In the book of Numbers, we see a Mountain and high upon the heights of this mountain is a people who live apart and do not consider ourselves to be one of the nations. These people are Holy and Exalted beings; the Greater Nation. In Numbers 24, it says that our dwelling place is secure, and that in our nest is a stone. In Deuteronomy we hear, "The Lord is like a Rock. His works are perfect. His ways are just." Samuel 22 states, "The Lord is my rock, my fortress and my deliverer. My God is my rock, in which I take refuge. He is my shield. He is my stronghold, my refuge." Samuel states, "The rock of Israel rules over people in righteousness." Looking to Exodus, we see that we are called to cut and set stones, and to engage in crafts for the Lord. In Romans 9:33 it is written, "I lay in Zion a stone." Echoed in first Peter, it says, "See, I lay this stone in Zion, a chosen precious cornerstone. ...The one who trusts in me will never be put to shame." The scripture of Matthew says, "Anyone who listens to my teachings and follows is wise, like a person who builds his house on a solid rock. Anyone who hears these words and does not put them into practice is like a foolish man who builds his house on sand." The Lord Himself nourishes us with honey or nectar from his stone. He is within us always, a light and geometry from within.

According to the Church of Latter Day Saints, scriptural prophets in America have opened the same portal that was opened by other prophets in times past. The prophet Joseph Smith wrote the Book of Mormon and began the restoration of a faith. The Lord showed the Prophet Joseph Smith after what manner he should work. The new prophet was called as a Shepherd to guide his people. Joseph Smith uncovered a series of gold plates engraved in a peculiar Masonic code he referred to as "Reformed Egyptian". He was given a keystone and keys to priestly authority. Through his foundation and his system of light, his chosen Elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints began to plant seeds. And it came to pass that these seeds did grow exceedingly around the world. It also came to pass that the Lord commanded that the Elders make records and books that encourage new followers to learn the ancient code of light... the code of the Angels of God. The chosen Elders were given the meaning of the engravings upon the same keystone held by the Prophet Joseph Smith. The ancient code of light from the sacred foundation or Cosmic Ashlar and engraved gold tablets enabled the Elders to restore the ancient work and retell the story of King Solomon's Temple. The prophet knew that His foundation, the Cosmic Ashlar, allowed the translation of the ancient code of light and that this translation would be a direct message from the Angels of Christ. The Elders who showed promise for manifesting the ancient work were invited into Freemasonry and entrusted as guardians and messengers of the Cosmic Ashlar, the keystone of Mormon. Joseph Smith, who encountered the heavenly light of the angels of the Lord, guided these works and established a church for the latter day saints. Through the code of the angels, chosen elders were called to glorify God and build His kingdom. According to the words of the Angels who speak by the power of the light of God, the Book of Mormon was written and disseminated across America. The book reveals that those called can talk with the tongue of angels that we can shout praises to the Holy One of Israel and communicate in the old code of light, the system of the past work. The law of the ancient work is the method of the view of God. And holding to this cube keystone, we are called as beloved and faithful brethren to follow the straight and narrow path and to press forward with steadfastness in Christ, having a perfect brightness of hope and a profound inner love of God.

We receive the light of the Holy Ghost in the form of the keystone of Mormon that it will show unto us all the things that we should do... for the Holy Ghost enables us to carry the code of God unto the hearts of the children of men. The Book of Mormon teaches that the Lord God will consecrate our prayers for the gain of His people. In the book of Jacob, the brother of Nephi, we see revealed the cause, the purpose, the land, the hope, and the collective dream. It is the seal of the Angels of God upon this earth. The Lord God commanded Jacob that he should write in clear records... using the code of the angels from their cube, upon the golden plates... the most precious things and that he should preserve the system of light and the records, and hand it down to his seed from generation to generation. In the Words of Mormon engraved in the ancient code of light upon the golden plates, we behold the history of America, written in the code of the Ancient Work called reformed Egyptian, or the Cosmic Ashlar code.

Men of renown, throughout all the ages, have taught their sons this ancient code of light... the Masonic system of the Ancient Work. Through the old work and the Keystone, men of renown were called to establish peace and prosperity. The gifts of the Spirit of God entered into the revelations of the Prophet Joseph Smith. Through Him, the encoded words from the golden plates were dispensed to the faithful servants. Brethren throughout all time have accepted the ancient Keystone as a gift for transliterating the ancient code of the Cosmic Ashlar. Some are called to serve substantially with the Keystone or Cosmic Ashlar. God granted high authority and the great honor to the Elders, Priests, Deacons, Teachers, Guardians, Messengers, and Prophets who throughout the ages have held the gold-engraved granite cube that empowers those who hold the priesthood. The Spirit of God gives the cube, which the Lord may teach the code of light and the word of wisdom to His followers in every nation, with the singular and real, tangible, solid cube system. Significant and substantial gifts come from the power of God. Elders are called to accept the award and pass it on through the work of the missionaries and brethren. If there must be hope, there must also be charity in our great work. We are called to do good deeds that unite the servants of the Lord, and to earn the trust of one another, inspiring others to follow in the ancient code of light.

The missionaries are called to announce the restored gospel of Jesus Christ... to speak of His return, and to give testimony that we can know and feel him in our hearts. We know from history that Jesus Christ taught for three years and gathered His disciples. Jesus desired to lead by example, and for his kindness and goodwill to spread. And so he encouraged others to do good and moral deeds, to obey God and to be empowered with His code of light. His kindness and goodwill began to spread when others woke up to his dawning message of compassion and light. Those who believed in Jesus earned His trust and friendship. His code of light was written in the language of the angels, translated, and revealed to us in the Sacred Scriptures so that we can know His will for us and merge with His Cosmic mind. Jesus lived and taught in the Holy Land. He traveled, visiting Jewish synagogues and gathering a new congregation of followers who believed in His message of kindness and unity. Jesus taught that the truly fortunate people are those of us who are rich in the things that matter to God. Those of us who are rich in the wisdom, light, and unity and the calling to serve morally, sincerely, and uprightly with the code of the stone and the book of the sacred law. The system of the rock is in fact, the invisible link, connecting us to the ancient work through the old code of light and the Cosmic Ashlar. In the book of the sacred law, Jesus teaches us to do acts of kindness and to pay-it-forward with good deeds that spread morality and empathy through the ancient code of light. We are called to involve and inspire our friends and neighbors with the covenant-in-light that promise to unite us peacefully and make us stronger together.

Jesus lived by example and was Himself, a selfless servant of the Heavenly Father. He told the truth and established the new covenant and revealed the exact code of the light of God... in the form of His rock of salvation. He knew in advance of His sacrifice and of how His sacrifice would lead to His destiny in unity with God. And so Jesus foretold of his death and resurrection. He knew that He would sacrifice his life to reconcile humanity with the wisdom and light of the Holy Spirit. Jesus was resurrected, and ascended through the power of the Holy Spirit that conceived Him and brought Him back to Heaven. In His last days on earth, He suffered under Pontius pilot, was tortured and given a crown of thorns, and was crucified upon a symbolic cross. The Holy Spirit, living within Him, had already promised eternal life based upon the new covenant with the nations that His life was lived to fulfill. The resurrected Jesus Christ, living within His apostles and disciples, promised that He would return bringing a code-of-light unto all the nations and peoples of the world. Jesus Christ is returning and fulfilling His promise to unveil the one code of light for a peaceful and united humanity. Jesus vows to make peace and share the code of light and love that is the currency of those of us who are pure in heart and live with a clean conscience. Jesus taught of the immortality of those who are raised up into the Glimmering Light in the East... the immortality of those who return with the ancient code of light from God. Jesus Christ will return... above and within us... for as long as His revolutionary message of friendship and His system of light can guide our works. Prophecies foretell of the return of a Messianic Savior guided by the Holy Spirit. This person is called to share Gods guidance and blessing through the wisdom and light of God. Jesus Christ will return with His gifts from God; His friendship and His code-of-light... to establish a Heavenly Kingdom and redeem all of the humanity.

In ancient times, the cube was held to be the most perfect of all the geometric, platonic forms. In around 370BC, in Athens Greece, the philosopher Plato equated the cube with the element of earth. Plato recorded the words and lessons of Socrates, one of the first teachers of humanism. In this ancient school of light, esoteric wisdom was transferred through knowledge of the flower of life. Within this flower is a three-dimensional diagram representing the old cosmic cube. The three-dimensional flower of life symbol illustrates the connectedness of all life and the spirit of the universe. In these ancient times, the flower of life cube was held to be the most perfect of all geometric forms. The flower of life Cosmic Ashlar symbol has been a sacred geometrical form, passed down via art, from generation to generation. The prophet Jesus Christ knew it. Art from every age glorifies the multi-angular flowering geometry of the friendship cube. Inscribed in various locations around the planet, including the Temple of Karnack and the Caves of Ascension in the Himalayas is this three-dimensional flower of life symbol. No one knows for sure how old the symbol is. We know that the cube is older than the art representing it. Engraved stones representing the cosmic cube are carved and painted into the middle temple at Abydos, Egypt. The three-dimensional flower of life symbol has also been found at Mount Sinai, Israel, and in temples in China and Japan. It has been found across India and it has also been found carved into rocks in the mountainous regions in Spain. Many people accept that the flower of life symbolizes the energy flow occurring among all cosmic ashlar holders across the planet. The purpose of the cosmic ashlar cube is to channel cosmic code and energy from the heavens. The cosmic ashlar cube contributes to the unity of our energy with the one Spirit. Its ancient code connects us with the oneness underlying all conscious being. The cosmic cube enables us to experience higher levels of unity and cosmic energy. The energy and code exchange facilitated by the cosmic cube opens up a channel within us. This channel allows prana or chi... the divine life-force energy, to enter into our physical being and transform us via cosmic consciousness. The flower of life is a symbol of the universal template representing the energetic signature of the cosmic cube. One must learn to use the cosmic cube to open the channel and peer inside into the wisdom and energetic power of God... the origin and destiny of all creation.

Virtually all cultures relate to the story of the great flood... the deluge that wiped away an advanced ancient civilization that likely existed in peace and harmony for millennia approximately twelve thousand years ago. Plato accounts of a cataclysmic event... a flood in the Mediterranean, and this historical account perfectly aligns with the Bible that tells the story of the flood and of the Ark made by Noah. The natives on every continent relay an oral history of a flood, and of the origins of humanity. Historians seeking for evidence of the antediluvian civilization have uncovered written evidence as well as ancient relics from Atlantis. Historians usually place great weight upon the evidence of Atlantis written by the philosopher Plato about Solon, and Athenian statesman and poet who journeyed to Egypt and was told the story of Atlantis from the Egyptian priests. Egyptian temples in this area of Egypt relay hieroglyphic images of the Atlantean civilization and their system of communication, a curious language of light that has attracted the interest of philosophers and writers throughout all written history since the time of Plato. In his dialogues, "Timaeus" and "Critias", Plato writes the story of the dialogues that occurred with philosophers at the School of Athens in Greece. Solon and the philosophers in the school of Athens would tell the story of Atlantis and its interaction with the Greeks and Egyptians. Critias is the story of the mighty island kingdom: Atlantis... and its historical attempt to conquer Athens. The Atlantean army failed to conquer Athens because they lacked the necessary organizational skills. Atlantis, throughout all history, is often spoken of as the "land beyond the twin pillars". It was surely an advanced seafaring civilization with a peculiar mode of script that was kept strictly secret to initiates in the upper Atlantean hierarchy. In all likelihood, Atlantis was built upon a large landmass, a landmass that according to Timaeus was an island larger than Asia. The majority of historians believe that Atlantis still exists deep beneath the waters of the Atlantic Ocean, and that the term "Atlantic" comes from the term "Atlantis". Solon locates the civilization of Atlantis as "Beyond the Pillars of Hercules". Ancient maps of the city center of Atlantis show concentric rings leading to an inner city temple. Plato himself was involved in the practice of Mithraism. There is a deep philosophical connection between Plato's lore based upon Mithraism and the philosophy that led to early Christianity.

In ancient Greece, devoted followers of Mithraism followed Masonic principles and were often involved in lawmaking. Both governors and philosophers often spoke about Atlantis... relaying fears as well as hopes to fellows in the timeless schools of light. Maps and relics recovered in South America lead historians today to believe that Atlantis did indeed exist, and that the Atlantean civilization held the knowledge necessary to build stone monuments including ziggurats and pyramids, as well as a great knowledge in working with metals. Archeologists in South America, the coasts of the Mediterranean, and Egypt have uncovered both metal and stone Atlantean cubes. These cubes from ancient Atlantis are not only astronomically valuable; they are also fascinating as they point researchers and enthusiasts in the direction of an ancient unwritten code of light. Today, there are literally thousands of books and films that explore the mysteries of Atlantis. Atlantean cubes are priceless, and rarely show up at public auction houses. Collectors usually buy and hold Atlantean cubes, and devote to uncovering the system of communication and navigation employed by the Atlantean peoples. It is believed by some collectors that the lost, sunken city of Atlantis may soon rise up again from deep beneath the waters of the Atlantic Ocean. Something from the ancient past is coming to us and creating a new world. A new world of marvels, wonder, and technology was predicted in Sir Francis Bacon's "New Atlantis". The dream of Sir Francis Bacon inspired the founders of America. The men who wrote the constitution, and the first President, George Washington, were all inspired by Plato's "Republic" and Sir Francis Bacon's "New Atlantis". America did rise to become the new land beyond the twin pillars. America did rise to become like a shining light upon a hill... a new light unto the world. America... in the eyes of the philosophically enlightened world is the rising New Atlantis.

Masonry has chosen servants and geniuses throughout the ages. Geniuses unite via a code of light that is tangible and substantial. One such genius that wrote in code was Leonardo Da Vinci. As a child, Leonardo had schooling from a Priest, who encouraged geometrical explorations, and invention, and for the light of Gods genius to reach the world. In the notebooks of Leonardo, we see an outpouring of Genius. Most of his notes were written in an encrypted code... an encoded script. One such code, which was passed on to him from a Priest, was the ancient code of light. At this time, the code of light and the circle of vowels leading to God were considered sacred knowledge by the Vatican. The code was only given to and used by the elite ruling class. Da Vinci earned a reputation for his service to the Elite. His encoded works dealt with submarines and aircraft, and with means of communicating secretly in order to win wars. He used the cube code and created automatic paper feeders for printing presses, machines that make metal screws, and doors that open and close automatically. He invented earth-moving machines, pliers, and the monkey wrench. He came up with the idea of the contact lens and wrote of augmented reality, and he devised formulas for manufacturing valuable hardware and software. His ideas continue to echo across our world today, and his codes have become an international standard.

Binary information is to this day, the center of the international intelligence community. Our most efficient and effective form of communication is light-speed visual binary. Radio waves or fiber optic cables are capable of sending light to transmit information. Similarly, the atom can be made conscious, to open up energy within the body via sacred geometries. It is interesting that molecules, especially Na_2CO_3 and NaCl within Holy Water within an inductive field induced by two solid gold electrodes, increases this energy and consciousness. Both the Sumerian Kings and the followers of the Pharaoh RMSS could have extracted the Manna from the Red Sea. This code is not as new as some people believe. In ancient Eastern China, one well-recognized form of binary visual communication is the I-Ching. The I-Ching consists of 64 (2^6) hexagrams. The Chinese I-Ching is a 6-bit visual binary communication system. There are six placeholders for binary information to be sent via each symbol. The I-Ching dates back over six thousand years. Today the I-Ching is used in China and all around the world. Another form of binary visual communication that is appearing everywhere is called the QR code, or Quick Response code. In each QR code are squares of black and white that makes up bits of binary visual information. To focus upon, recognize, read quick response codes, each code has a set of three squares to calibrate the measurement of the QR code in smart devices. In the cube system, the diamond or tilted square is used for calibration. Lines express bits. We require smart devices to read QR codes, but the human eye can read both the cube code and the I-Ching. There are twenty-two pieces of code that we can recognize from the hub system. It is paramount that intelligence agencies can know the difference between signals and noise... we filter noise. Only signals are collected, and structured molecules assemble them. The code is most useful for intelligence work merging between man and machine. It comes with it a destiny of superior, united, light-based consciousness and with that, an expansive alliance enterprise. Secret societies have existed for millennia, connecting initiates with a code of light that enables the consolidation of wealth and power.

A founder of one such society was Cecil Rhodes. Cecil John Rhodes was born on the 5th of July in 1853. He came from a middle-class family in England. Ever since he was a child, he had big dreams for building the British Empire. As a young boy, Cecil studied the philosophy of Marcus Aurelius, a Roman emperor who believed in the principles of prudence, temperance, justice, and fortitude. Rhodes graduated from high school with dreams of serving Queen Victoria and her expansive empire. But Cecil suffered from some health problems and was told that he likely only had a few months to live. He determined to hop onto a boat to South Africa to pursue the life in the new British colony. Cecil John Rhodes inherited two thousand pounds sterling to buy land in the territory of South Africa. He chose to live stoically and spend wisely. He met up with brothers in the colony and gradually became more successful in farming, mining, and study. Cecil John Rhodes was initiated into Freemasonry as soon as he returned to England, at Apollo Lodge #357, in September 1877, at the age of 24. He then returned to South Africa with a mission from the order. Rhodes was named the chairperson of DeBeers Consolidated Mines Ltd., established with funding from NM Rothschild and Sons. Rhodes used powerful strategy to create a diamond and gold monopoly. Rhodes entered the realm of British power, prestige, and privilege. He attended Oxford University and studied under Professor John Ruskin, a man who inspired Rhodes. One night, camping in the Mountains of Cape Town, the Spirit of the Empire possessed him.

As a result of his growing alliance enterprise business monopolies, Cecil Rhodes' income rose to over one million pounds sterling per year, all of which he devoted to the mysterious imperial projects, explorations, and adventures that he financed himself. He sought to create one land... Rhodesia... from Cape Town to Cairo... run by Freemasons and inspired by the legends of King Solomon. During this time in Rhodes's life, he formed an appending body to Freemasonry called the "Society of the Elect"... a roundtable group whose purpose was the foundation of, "So great power as to hereafter render wars impossible, and promote the long-term interests of humanity and the environment". Through the operation of this secret society, whose membership ranged from the Queen to Lord Milner, Rudyard Kipling, and the Rothschild circle, Rhodes became the wealthiest man in Africa. He took control of Africa by buying the newspapers before he ran as a politician. He used powerful strategy to climb to the highest office in the land. In his position, he advocated for new systems of communication and transportation that would unite the continent under British rule. He financed the telegraphs and railways across the growing nation of Rhodesia. A mysterious Russian Princess Raswill followed Rhodes across Africa. She was fascinated with the diamond wealth Rhodes had consolidated. Cecil John Rhodes worked with Yiddish bankers in Africa to build Empire. One day, reading Marcus Aurelius on an overturned bucket while supervising his Mines under the Sun, Rhodes was told once again that his time on earth would be limited, so he redrafted his will and perfected his plan for a secret society to finance the Rhodes Scholars at Oxford University in order for these chosen scholars to build an empire of worlds.

In his will, he wrote, "to think of these stars that you see overhead at night... these vast worlds which we cannot yet reach. I would annexe the planets if I could; I often think of that. It makes me sad to see them so clear and yet so far." Cecil Rhodes was installed into the office of Worshipful Master of his Lodge the same year that he was elected Prime Minister of South Africa. He then worked to create the society of the elect that operated in strict secrecy and used a hidden cube-code based on the legends of the Cosmic Ashlar of King Solomon. He was often referred to by the code name, "King Solomon", and stories about King Solomon's Mines often alluded to Cecil Rhodes himself. Cecil Rhodes was reported to have died in 1909. However, when analyzing the evidence, it is likely that he faked his death and moved to northern Europe with the mysterious Russian Princess. Cecil Rhodes moved to Russia, and then East Germany, and he became a Zionist collaborator, working directly with the Rothschild banking circle. Rhodes used monatomic gold formulations to preserve his body and mind, and he lived well into his 90s. Travelling across Europe, Cecil John Rhodes worked out the plan for a global economic system and an empire of worlds, and his society of the elect established the central coordinating role of Israel and the United Nations. He collaborated with American Zionist Freemasons to establish the Federal Reserve Banking System, and he met David Ben-Gurion in person. On May 15th, 1948, Cecil John Rhodes died in peace, shortly after the divine reestablishment of Israel, to prepare for the New King Solomon. Cecil Rhodes ascended in Israel within miles of the Dome of the Rock.

To this day, Rhodes Scholars use Rhodes' diamond code to control both sides of debates or political movements using the Hegelian dialectic strategy. Rhodes knew and showed that the system of the Cosmic Ashlar from King Solomon holds with it the potential to peacefully unite the world. Rhodes' secret society endures to this day through the auspices of the Order of the Cosmic Ashlar.
