

FAUNSHEAD

BIO

AMERICAN BERLIN BASED ROCK

Founded in 2014 and inspired by Psychedelic Rock of the 70's, Punk music of the 80's, all the way to 90's Grunge and Stoner Rock, the band sounds like a clash of it's member's influences merging in an adventurous new rock sound that will get you off the couch and make you dance within the first seconds!

Going through some changes in the first year the band settled for their current line up as a four piece band in the summer of 2015, to create their dark Rock & Roll spiced up with a modern pulsating heart beat.

FAUNSHEAD has recorded their debut album "Can't Dance" at studio K61 and will hit the road to play some mesmerizing shows, psyched to devote their life to keeping Rock & Roll alive!

LIVE

LIVE SESSION @ STUDIO

Carrying-on with the recordings and working at developing and defining their unique sound, the band shot a live video of "Wicked" a song from the up coming record, in what could be described as FAUNSHEAD's headquarters, Studio K61. Two rooms located in the basement of an old Stasi building that have been turned from former interrogation cells into a high end recording studio and are set up to enhance the creation of profound Rock & Roll music.

FAUNSHEAD

THE SOUND

Imagine driving through the desert on a dark gloomy night... that's when you would want to listen to FAUNSHEAD. The band grew hand in hand with studio K61 which was founded by Matt and Mario Engelter, head sound engineer, friend and also co-producer of FAUNSHEAD's upcoming record.

When Matt and Mario decided to found Studio K61 and build it in the rooms where the band was rehearsing at the time, they developed FAUNSHEAD's unique sound all together, sharing their passion for high end vintage gear and their love of Rock & Roll.

„Raw power“ and „electrifying“ are the words that come to mind if you should describe the band's sound with two words. Thrilling and pulsating drums combined with heavy guitars, thundering bass sounds topped with hypnotizing vocals and lyrics, create an exciting atmosphere for the upcoming “Can't Dance” record that will make you want to bang your head in the mosh-pit and jump around until you can barely stand.

THE BAND

Vocals, Guitar / Matt Norman
Lead Guitar / Francesco Fusco
Bass / Duarte Azevedo
Drums / Stefan Bregenzer

American Berlin based band, the boys share their appetite for loud Rock & Roll in the vibrant city. Together they create a sound inspired by the greats of the louder music styles of the past decades and write music that will make you dance until you're soaking wet.

REVIEWS

« (...) Faunshead's sound has evolved. They're moving away from the Rage Against the Machine heaviness into more light and shade. When I ask Francesco and Matt what they're listening to at the moment, the answers come out rapid fire: Siouxsie and the Banshees, Nick Cave, Joy Division, a Jimi Hendrix record I ought to know, Queens of the Stone Age... »

« Third to take the stage were the men of the hour, Faunshead. By this time the crowd had grown to a large size, everyone in anticipation of the main act. The guys had a strong, confident stage presence despite the current lineup of the band playing together for just shy of a year. With the new lineup, the sound of the band has evolved to include darker scales, with a trashy, hard rock sound. »

« Matt was every bit the frontman in his leather jacket. With his commanding attitude, he played his guitar and sang with a depth to his voice like Jim Morrison. Duarte came alive behind his bass guitar and looked at home up on the stage. Playing alongside them was Francesco, grooving on his guitar, and Giorgio supplying a solid rhythm on the drums, at one point even breaking into a more hip-hop like beat. They all played with an energy that was contagious, causing an outbreak of dancing. »
