Europe:

Grand Mosque of Paris condemns terrorist attacks as well as appeals for national unity and mourning.
Hassen Chalghoumi, imam of the Drancy mosque in Paris's Seine-Saint-Denis suburb: "These are criminals, barbarians. They have sold their soul to Hell. This is not freedom. This is not Islam and I hope the French will come out united at the end of this."

Union of Islamic Organizations of France has responded, calling the attack "abject barbarism" and echoing calls for the Muslim community to donate blood and for French citizens to stay united in this crisis.

The French Muslim Council hasn't yet updated their website but have been extremely loud against ISIS and terrorists who target France. "This is a thunderous declaration of war. The times have changed. We're entering a new phase of this confrontation... we are horrified by the brutality and the savagery," imam Dalil Boubakeur was quoted as saying.

Muslim Council of Britain responds to the attack, saying there's nothing "Islamic" about ISIS, and supports justice for the victims

Bosnian reisu-l-ulema (highest Muslim clerical authority in the country) issued a statement: "I most seriously condemn the terrorist attacks in Paris and the murder of innocent people. The Islamic Community and Muslims of Bosnia and Herzegovina express their deepest condolences and solidarity with the French people in their pain. We remember the support and solidarity of the French citizens from the recent history when we first-hand experienced fearmongering and terror. I especially call upon the Muslims of Europe to preserve peace and remember that terrorists do not represent our faith nor our community, and that terrorism cannot be justified morally, religiously or politically."

Saudi Arabia: The "heinous" Paris attacks are a violation of all religions and underline the need to intensify efforts against "terrorism," Saudi Arabia's foreign minister said Saturday. "I wanted to express our condolences to the government and people of France for the heinous terrorist attacks that took place yesterday which are in violation and contravention of all ethics, morals and religions," Adel al-Jubeir told reporters in Vienna. "The kingdom of Saudi Arabia has long called for more intensified international efforts to combat the scourge of terrorism in all its forms and shapes," he said.

Iran: All Iranian political parties have issued condemnations of the attack as well as attacks in Beirut and Baghdad. Iranian president Hassan Rouhani has sent a message to French President Francois Hollande condemning the terror attacks in Paris. The state-run IRNA news agency quoted Rouhani as saying Saturday that Iran "itself has been a victim of the scourge of terrorism" and the fight against terrorism must go on. Rouhani also canceled visits to France and Italy, due in a few days. The Vice President sent a message to the French Premier expressing sympathy for the victims and praying for France's prosperity.

Egypt: Egyptian President Abdel-Fattah el-Sissi has condemned the Paris attacks and is conveying condolences to the victims. A statement from his office on Saturday called for "concerted international efforts" to combat "the scourge of terrorism, which aims to destabilize security and stability in various parts of the world, without distinction." The head of Sunni Islam's leading seat of learning, Cairo's Al-Azhar, on Saturday condemned "hateful" attacks in Paris that killed more than 120 people and urged global unity against extremism. "We denounce this hateful incident," Ahmed al-Tayyeb told a conference in comments broadcast by Egyptian state television. "The time has come for the world to unite to confront this monster." "Such acts are contrary to all religious, humanitarian and civilised principles," Tayyeb said at the opening of the conference in the southern city of Luxor focused on combating "extremist thought".

Indonesia: Indonesia's President strongly condemned terrorism and called for the upcoming G-20 summit to address this together. "I express deep sorrow for the victims of terrorism and violence in Paris, and also to the government and the people of France," President Jokowi remarked. In the condolences conveyed by Jokowi shortly before his departure to Turkey, the president stated that terrorism, for any reason and in any form, cannot be tolerated. "The government and people of Indonesia strongly condemned the violence and atrocities that occurred in Paris on Friday," the Head of State reiterated.

UAE: "The terrorist outrage in Paris proves that much more must be done to combat extremism and terrorism by all of us. None is immune," the Minister for Foreign Affairs posted on Twitter

<http://gulfnews.com/.../.../paris-attacks-world-reacts-1.1619636>

Iraq: Iraqi Prime Minister Haider Al Abadi on Saturday condemned gun and bomb attacks in Paris, saying they showed the need for action against militants worldwide. "We condemn and deplore the terrorist attacks in Paris, which emphasise that fighting terrorism calls for international efforts to eliminate it in all countries," Abadi said in a statement.
