HISTORIC HYDERABAD "THE PARIS OF THE PAST"

• Background and History

Hyderabad the former capital of Sindh, 4th largest city of Pakistan and 2nd largest city in the province is home to almost 2 million people and is also one of the oldest city of South Asia, located in south-east of the country.

Hyderabad Sindh has been the crossroad for various warriors, rulers and travelers, for that the city has been benefited & suffered as well by the passage of time.

Like Athens, Rome, Istanbul, Baghdad, Damascus, Delhi, Cairo & London: Hyderabad Sindh also stands tall and proud with full force of modern day hustle and bustle, telling the story of its past, present and future to every visitor. It is also the Cultural Capital and Literary Capital of Sindh; a City of Artists, Artisans, Writers, Poets, Politicians, Activists and serves as the Nerve Center of every mass movement in Sindh, It is also the city of Saints and Sufis as hundreds of shrines are scattered all over the city.

During pre-Islamic era Hyderabad was called as Neroon Kot, the word is derived from Sindhi language, which means "Place of Neeron" ruler of that time.

Sindh River or River Indus in English has ruled and regulated Sindh and Hyderabad socially, culturally, economically and politically. It has devoted the fate of Sindh and Hyderabad in war and peace times. Hyderabad and Sindh are interwoven to each other that Hyderabad is called the CULTURAL CAPITAL of SINDH and it has always been the major transportation hub due to its central location in Sindh.

Pakistan Cardiac Society

Pakistan Cardiac Society was established in 1966 with the aim to enhance awareness regarding prevention, early diagnosis, and appropriate management and updated treatment strategies in the field of Cardiology. Since its inception the society has been conducting biennial and annual conferences to achieve its objectives. There are city wise local chapters which play important role to create awareness in the general public about Cardio Vascular Diseases.

Pakistan Cardiac Society published its first journal with the name of "Pakistan Heart Journal" in 1968. The society had the privilege to have distinguished National and International scholars to be part of it.
