Leading your Graduate Hiring Process

Harness the potential of your graduate recruitment function

Graduate hiring has been one of the key problem areas for most companies. Hiring right has a direct impact on fuelling your company's growth

Identify the best cultural fits to your organization

Reduce costs
related to hiring
and re-hiring

Maximise the impact of fresh hires with data to make informed decisions

Common Problems Faced By Hiring Managers

“We think our current recruitment process is taking too long for the volume we need and it is too expensive “

“How can I make sure my entry level hires don't just see me as a training programme?”

“How do I select candidates capable of contributing to the business quickly?”

“How can I be sure that my candidates will fit into our unique organizational culture?”

“We need to decrease new hire turnover. We are losing too many new hires and it is impacting our ability to deliver for our customers”

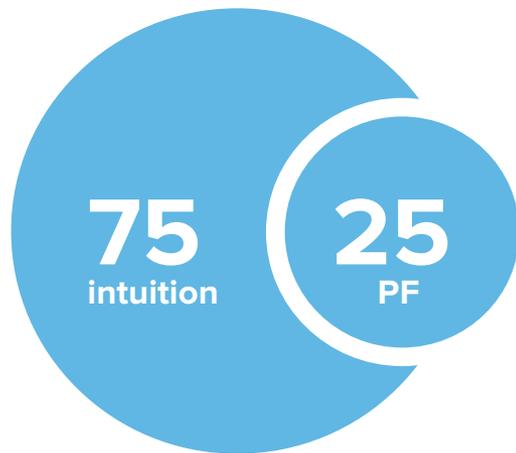

“How do I get access to the best pool of Graduate talent who are responsive and ready to connect”

Common Mistakes and Risks associated in Graduate Hiring

Most recruiters rely on intuition and grades to make critical graduate hiring decisions

Percentage of recruitment managers who use personality factors for sourcing

Decisions about graduate hiring is largely based on an individual manager's gut feel and a candidate's grades

Implication:

Although intuition and grades can add value to selection decisions, but over reliance on this exposes the organization to a number of risks with long term consequences

Risks

High Attrition

High Cost to recruit

Poor employee performance

Increased time to recruit

Brand reputation

Outdated Traditional Approach

Common Approaches

Only using subjective recruitment methods such as CVs and interviews that may not be reliable

Hiring candidates that do not fit within the cultural framework of the company

Wasting time sifting unsuitable candidates and not treating them as fairly and as personally as they deserve

Only using internal benchmarks and hoping that's enough, limiting the view of talent externally

Unintended Consequences

- Recruiters rely only on the candidate's grades and personal gut for decision making, which in turn leads to missing out on high potential candidates
- Candidates tend to leave within a few months of their hiring leading to increased expenditure in re-hiring and training
- Not utilising recruitment platforms effectively leads to wasted time on manual sifting
- Risking damage to the brand's reputation. Candidates can also be customers
- There is little data to explain how strong the talent pool is
- Recruiters don't know if they are recruiting the best in the marketplace or settling for the best in the applicant pool

Outdated Traditional Approach

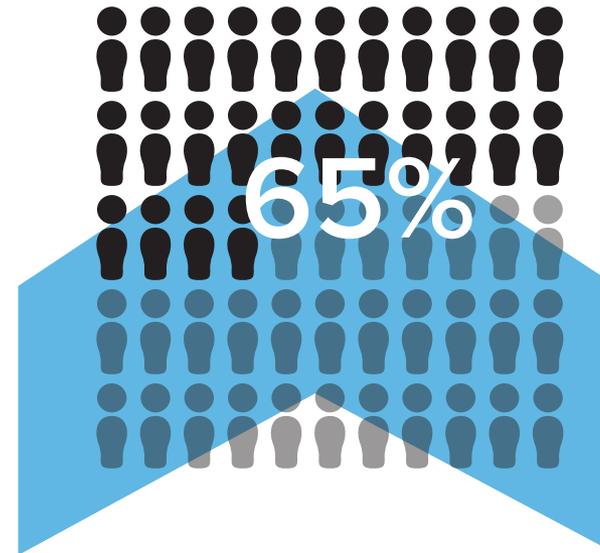

1 role = 1 day screening

Implication:

High volumes of applications for each role demand time and resource from the hiring managers. This is not reflected in the number of recruiting staff. This stretches resources further and increases the likelihood of errors and negative impact.

of which

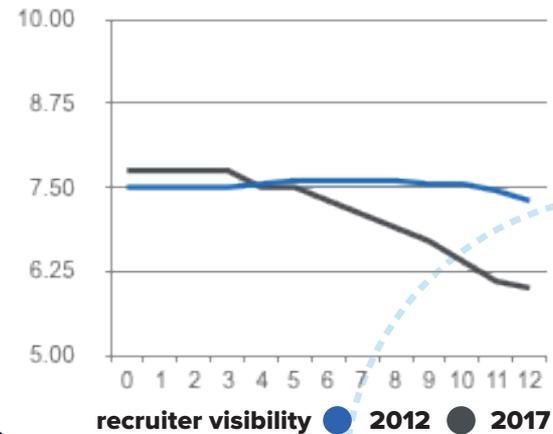

Don't meet basic requirements

The Current Scenario

- ▶ Honeymoon period masks new hire performance
- ▶ Today's new hires underperform over the course of a year despite initial hiring satisfaction. Recruiting is not contributing to the 20% productivity improvement required.

Hiring manager satisfaction with their new hires performance

The Recommended Solution

Instead of...

Wasting your time and stretching hiring resources

We recommend you...

Integrate assessments with your recruitment function to accelerate the selection process

Instead of...

Using outdated techniques to source graduate talent

We recommend you...

Open yourself to a refined pool of talent aligned to the cultural requirements of your organisation

Instead of...

Assuming you know how your candidates measure up

We recommend you...

Measure yourself against the competition. Know where you are losing the best talent

Examples Of How We Can Help

CLIENTS ISSUE

“We need to minimize the time for candidates to be effective in role once recruited. We are not seeing our new hires being productive as quickly as we need them to be.”

“We need to decrease new hire turnover. We are losing too many new hires and it is impacting our ability to deliver for our customers”

“We need to make our recruitment process quicker. We think our current recruitment process is taking too long for the volume we need and that is too expensive and costing our employer brand”

Technological Expertise

Be it medical imaging, computer science, or new communications media, dthrt is attentive to science and technological advances and to their impact on daily life. He may wish to consider professions in the scientific and technical sectors, and, should you desire, may choose to specialize in one of these areas.

5 Process Orientation

dthrt knows how to keep things in order with method and precision. He is meticulous in his work, although he doesn't try to plan everything. He is best suited for a job which will call on your organizational skills, but also allow you to improvise from time to time.

8 Interpersonal Relations

CAND_FIRST_NAME can easily establish a rapport with others and know how to create the foundations for constructive dialogue. Socially skilled, he is able to lead debates and discussions with ease. He should be considered for jobs which will allow him to take advantage of his interpersonal skills.

5 Social Interest

dthrt doesn't think twice about offering his services to others and lending his support. He may be chosen a profession for which he is sometimes required to demonstrate his listening skills and to dedicate time to others.

5 Manual Work

dthrt's responses indicate some interest in physical and nature activities. He is prepared to exert a physical effort when the situation requires it. Nevertheless, he sometimes prefers to sit back, and appreciates having some quiet time away from the action.

6 Intellectual Curiosity

dthrt's intellectual curiosity pushes him to strengthen his knowledge on the numerous subjects he is interested in, and to seek activities that will allow him to apply this knowledge. He is likely to seek a career that will allow him to make use of his intellectual abilities without necessarily requiring him to be an expert.

5 Aesthetic Interest

Fairly sensitive, dthrt appreciates art and you may spontaneously comprehend messages communicated through modes of expression other than language. Even if you may sometimes call upon artistic means to express yourself, you most often use logic to understand the world, and to express your ideas and emotions.

7 Creative Interest
