

Playing Slot Machines: Tips and Strategies

Gambling, the American Dream. How often have you wished $.25 nervously dropped into a slot machine would win big? It has happened in the past and it could happen again. While these words may be true, it probably won't happen to you.

But you will never win unless you play. I have played slot machines in various cities across the US, and have discovered that winning at these games is a "right place, right time" kind of thing. Making your money last is the trick, more so than finding a machine that might pay out.

Stop following that little old lady around, she is no luckier than you. I can, however give you a few tips to help you maximize your dollars.

First off, if you are trying to gamble to make money, you might as well stay home and save your money. Gambling is not for people who are already in money trouble. If your bills are paid and you have a few bucks left, give it a shot, you never know. For those of you who can afford it, try some of the following tips. you might be the next big winner.

Find a dollar amount that feels comfortable to you. Slot machines come in many denominations. A penny a spin all the way up. I prefer the 2 and 5 cent machines. They tend to get played more often and have a higher turn around. Plus, you can literally play for hours on a few bucks. Now, when playing any type of machine there is always plenty of options to change the way the game is played. Most machines have a row of buttons that determine how many lines you want to bet on. Obviously, the more lines you play, the better your chances are of winning. I always play the maximum amount of lines, betting 1 credit per line. The pay outs aren't as big, but I almost always come out ahead. If I happen to win credits above my initial investment, I will bet more credits per line. I don't do it often, but it can be very lucrative if you hit.

Many people who play use a system. Usually, they will bet 1 credit per line, then 2, then 3 and so on. It doesn't work. Slot machines are totally random and involve complete luck. There is no higher power involved- God doesn't care if you win at video slots and certainly won't intervene to help you win. However, occasionally, a machine may be hitting a few times in a row. Recognizing it as it happens is the trick. I recently sat at a machine that seemed to hit on every spin, so I hit the max bet button and got lucky. I won $2000! Then I cashed out and went home. Don't forget to do the same. The slots can take it back as fast as they pay out so be careful!

All slot machines work the same, so the rules apply to all of them. just remember, the more you bet at a time, the faster your money disappears. Never wager more than you are willing to lose and above all, remember that the casinos are there to make money, they aren't successful because they pay out. They are successful because they bring in cash.

So, have fun and be responsible. If you play smart and know when to stop, you will enjoy your time at the casino. Good luck and happy gaming!
