A/N: This might be out of character-- I hope it's not, and I hope you enjoy it!
Hopefully the reveal is okay! There's either one or two more parts left. Thank you so much for your kind comments! <3 <3

Hunger gnawed at Izuku's stomach. He'd skipped lunch and eaten poorly at dinner the day before, and he wasn't really keen on skipping another meal. He had a diet to stick to after all. It wasn't healthy to skip meals with how physical hero training was. But that didn't mean he was looking forward to going downstairs.

Reluctantly he made his way down to the dorm kitchens. He'd waited as long as he could stand, it was late, and most of his classmates usually ate much earlier in the evening. He'd grab something easy to manage and flee to his room. With any luck, he'd be in and out before more than a few people could see him, and in a few days (no notes willing) this whole thing would have blown over with his peers.

It was too much to hope that things would go exactly as he planned of course. Nothing ever seemed to go according to plan for him.

He fought the urge to dart back towards his room at the sight of the crowded kitchen. It was like everyone was waiting for him. They probably were.
