President's Message

We welcome you all into RY2017/2018, together with our Rotaract president Jimmy and the interact presidents. Theme of the year is "Rotary making a difference".

Dear Rotarians and friends of Rotary I salute you all. The month of July will see us unveil the projects we have planned to undertake this year.

Our goals are:-

1. Focus on increased Humanitarian service.
2. Reduction of environmental degradation through mission green.
3. Enhancing Rotary's public image as we strengthen our club's membership and cohesion.

Our activities will cover all the six areas of focus throughout the year, my appeal is that every member must take part in shaping our club's future and make it outstanding Service Projects.

- a) Global grants on going is Nalukonjohe, in Butujja and the Nkoyoyo orphanage, many other proposals are in the pipeline
- b) "KCB" Sanitation for Kira clean and beautiful under Rtn Mike Kedi
- c) Community development including women empowerment that is the RCC'S. we are also hoping to charter a club or two.
- d) Basic education of women to read and write
- e) The centre of Excellency as our signature project which we hope will have a tele centre, computer facility, and several other vocational skills training
- f) Our monthly dental project under Rtn Hakiza and Rtn Kiyegga
- g) Our RFH days – in 3 camps (i) Kireku (ii) Namulonge, (iii) Kisoro
- h) A mission green project on planting trees and construction of energy saving stores.

Allow me to present to you the committee members in the projects mentioned;

RI PRESIDENT'S THEME ADDRESS TO THE 2017 INTERNATIONAL ASSEMBLY

It's great to be able to formally welcome you, the 2017-18 class of Rotary International .

We are here to help ensure that the Rotary we all value so deeply continues to serve and to grow, not just through this year, or even through our lifetimes, but beyond.

We are here to help maintain and build a Rotary that is sustainable, and that keeps sustainability and continuity at the heart of its focus and its planning from now on.

And that is why all of us here must see the year ahead not just as our year of leadership, but as Rotary's year. Not the year that Rotary has given us to shine, but the year that we will give to Rotary, so that its light will shine ever brighter.

Our service will be guided, as it should be, by the three strategic priorities.

- to support and strengthen our clubs
- to focus and increase our humanitarian service
- and to enhance Rotary's public image and awareness

So how do we support and strengthen our clubs? We start by giving them the tools to be successful. Thanks in part to the recently approved dues increase, we are now undertaking significant changes that will enable us to improve support for our clubs by a greatly enhanced array of online tools. In particular, a refreshed Rotary.org, a simplified Rotary Foundation grant process, an improved My Rotary experience, and a rebuilt and far more effective Rotary Club Central, which will be faster, easier to use, mobile-friendly, and an essential tool for every club. This is an important use of Rotary's valuable resources.

Now, when we look at the specific challenges in our clubs, which we must help them to address, two of them stand out to me. One is the gender balance in our membership. The other is the average age of Rotarians.

The second critical challenge in our member demographics is our age. Paul Harris was 6 years of age when he called that first Rotary meeting together in Chicago in 1905. Today, only 5 percent of our reported membership is under the age of 40. Just 5 percent. The great majority of members are over 60. And that is based on age reporting that covers only half our membership base — it doesn't even include the people who don't want to tell us how old they are.

It is imperative that we find new and better ways to consistently attract and engage younger members, so that we are constantly creating new generations of members and leaders. This is essential for our organization to flourish.

What about our second strategic priority of focusing and increasing our humanitarian service? We have six areas of focus in Rotary. In all of them, one essential element is sustainability. We don't dig wells and walk away: We make sure communities can maintain and repair those wells. If we build a clinic, we make sure that clinic has a way to keep running, without ongoing support from us. And when it comes to polio, we aren't just working to contain it; we're working to end it. Eradicating polio is the ultimate in sustainable service. It is an investment that will yield not just a long-lasting but a permanent benefit, on a global scale. Of course polio is unique in Rotary's history. But it has shown us what we are capable of achieving. And it should be a model for all of our service — a global reminder that the best possible way to increase the good that we do is to do it sustainably and often in partnership with others. Our third priority is enhancing public image and awareness, which very naturally goes hand in hand with the first two goals. We'll be previewing our new public image campaign here this week, talking about the importance of communicating a consistent brand, and about ways to tell our Rotary story more effectively.

When we're better able to communicate who we are in Rotary, what we stand for, and what we do, we're much more likely to attract new members who will fit into our organization and new partners who will help us leverage our service to achieve even more.

Connecting all of those priorities is that one word: sustainability. Yet there is another aspect of sustainability that underpins all of that, but which is too little talked about in Rotary, and which we can no longer put aside as not our responsibility. That is sustainability of our planet.

In 1990, then-RI President Paulo Costa called upon all Rotarians to preserve planet Earth. Through that theme, he hoped to awaken Rotary's ecological conscience. By committing to planet Earth, he said, we sealed our commitment to the future. Today, environmental degradation and climate change threaten us all. They are having a disproportionate impact on those who are most vulnerable, those to whom Rotary has the greatest responsibility. Yet environmental issues barely register on the Rotary agenda. The time is long past when environmental sustainability can be dismissed as not Rotary's concern. It is, and must be, everyone's concern. And so I am asking every Rotary club to plant at least one tree for each member. This can be a true feature of Rotary in 2017-18.

Making a difference is an expression you hear all the time about Rotary, the opportunities that we have and the things that we do. And that is why we are all here, at this assembly. To make a difference: to our world, to our communities, and in the lives of others. And in 2017-18, that will not only be our goal, but our theme — Rotary: Making a Difference. What kind of a difference each club and each Rotarian chooses to make will always be their own decision. But we are united in our organization and its common principles: our insistence on ethics and our commitment to Service Above Self.

We are united in our common goals of moving our organization forward and ensuring its lasting future. I ask you to keep that spirit of teamwork and cooperation always in your minds and to take it back with you to your districts. Let me emphasize again that the year ahead of us all is not just our year of leadership. Our job is to make it Rotary's year to shine. It is the year all of us have committed to dedicate to service through Rotary. It is Rotary making a difference by building stronger and more active clubs that serve in better and more lasting ways. It is believing in a Rotary that is recognized for the good work it does — a Rotary that will continue to grow, to endure, to go from strength to strength — making a difference to our communities, our countries, and our world. That is what we will achieve together next year. Rotary: Making a Difference.
